

In this extract there are a number of spelling mistakes. In your answer booklet, mark the letter where the spelling mistake is underlined. If there isn't a spelling mistake, mark the letter X.

- 26 There was a sound of wheels outside, and, as Dick heard them, he grew desprate
A B C
in his extremity.
D X
- 27 a wish he had long since secretly cherished unspoken, without ever hopeing for courage
A B C D X
- 28 to give it words, rose to his lips now; he got up and moved timmidly towards his father.
A B C D X
- 29 "Father," he said, "there's something I want to say too you so much before I go.
A B C
Do let me ask you now."
D X
- 30 "Well, what is it?" said Paul. "Make haste, you haven't much time."
A B C D X
- 31 "It's this, I want you to - to let me leave Grimstone's at the end of turn."
A B C D X
- 32 Paul stared at him, angry and incredulous. "Let you leave Dr Grimstone's
A B C D X
- 33 (obblige me by giving him his full title when you speak of him)." he said slowly.
A B C D X

From Vice Versa by F. Anstey

In this extract mistakes have been made in the use of punctuation and capital letters. In your answer booklet, mark the letter where the mistake is underlined. If there isn't a mistake, mark the letter X.

This story from the Buddhist faith is about a King teaching his wise men a lesson ...

- 34 The fourth blind man felt the elephant's leg. "It is obvious that this elephant is like a tree."
A B C
when the fifth blind man caught hold.
D X
- 35 of the elephants tail he was absolutely convinced that the elephant was like a rope.
A B
Many other blind men felt the elephant and each had his own idea as to what it was like.
C D X
- 36 Soon, quarrels broke out. Angry words were shouted. One man pushed another.
A B C D X
- 37 the quarrels turned into fights as each blind man was sure he was right.
A B
The wise men looked on in amazement at the way the blind men were behaving, and C
some of them even began to laugh.
D X
- 38 "Why are you laughing" enquired the King. "The way these blind men are behaving
A B C is no different to how you behave!
D X

PLEASE TURN OVER