PEARSON

Shoreside Steels Ltd (SSL) is based in Redcar where it has been manufacturing steel components for the local engineering industry since 1951. Changes in the British economy in recent years have had a major effect on SSL. Sales have declined and its trading accounts show that it has been losing money during 2011. It is a private limited company with all of the shares owned by members of the Pressley family. The managing director, David Pressley, wants to retire and make way for his son John. David has recently sought help from the business advice team at his bank.

In order for the business to survive David has been advised to make major changes to prepare the business for the future. One of these changes would be to reduce the present workforce from 500 to 250 employees. Some of these 250 will be made redundant.

Survival is currently the main objective for SSL.

- 1 (a) Give two reasons why survival is the main objective for SSL. (2)
