INTRODUCTION

Golden Days produces high quality wooden toys for the UK market. These toys are sold in department stores and high street shops across the country.

Edwina George is the managing director having taken over from her father who founded the company in 1975. The company has been very successful but Edwina is considering ways in which they could expand the business.

Her ideas for expansion include:

- exporting toys to other countries throughout Europe
- producing larger and more expensive wooden toys such as dolls' houses and rocking horses for the UK market.

Edwina's expansion plans include the purchase of an adjoining building to increase the size of the production area.

You have been asked to assist Edwina with her work.

5. Golden Days decides to test the market in France and has arranged for several shops to sell its toys. The toys sell well and the shops need to order more stock.

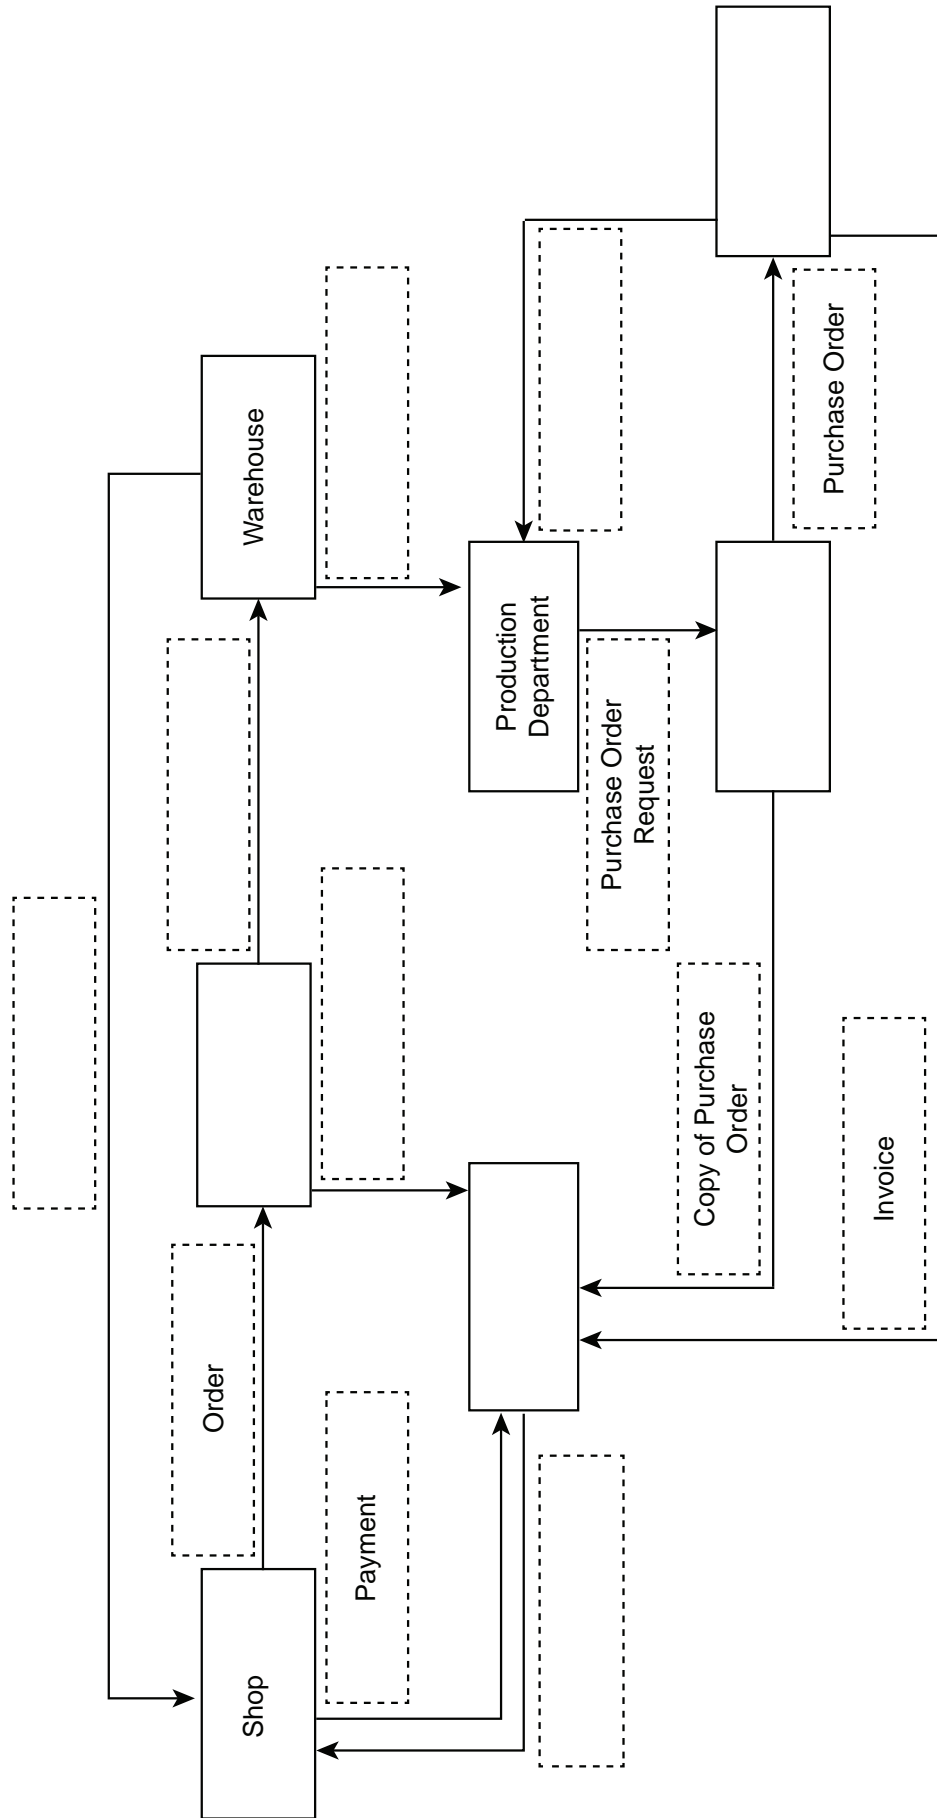

The ordering process for toys is described below:

The shop sends an order to the administration department of Golden Days. The administration department sends the order to the warehouse and a copy of the order to the finance department. If the item is in stock the warehouse sends the item and a delivery note to the shop. The finance department sends an invoice to the shop which then sends a payment to the finance department.

If the item is not in stock the warehouse sends a stock request to the production department. If the production department does not have the materials to produce the item, it sends a purchase order request to the purchasing department who send a purchase order to the supplier and a copy of the purchase order to the finance department. The supplier sends the materials and a delivery note to the production department and an invoice to the finance department.

Using the information above, complete the information flow diagram below. [5]

“Hello again. We must ensure that we have sufficient stock to supply the shops in the UK, France and Germany. With this in mind, a computerised stock control system has recently been introduced to the warehouse. I will shortly be attending a meeting to discuss this new system and would like you to provide me with some information. I am most interested in how a computerised stock control system allows us to manage our stock effectively.”

Describe how the computerised stock control system allows Golden Days to manage its stock effectively. [4]
