How Tata built an empire

Tata Group is the largest Indian multinational conglomerate; it includes Tata Steel, Tata Motors and Tata Consultancy Services. In 2012 it earned revenues of over $100 billion, more than half of it abroad, while employing around 450,000 people.

Tata Group's main holding company, Tata Sons, has 98 operating companies spread across 56 countries in six continents. Tata Sons is two-thirds owned by a charitable trust, which distributed more than $100 million in profits to good causes in 2012. 5

Since 2000 nearly $18 billion has been spent to acquire 22 companies worldwide, including Tetley Tea and Corus Steel in the UK, New York's Pierre Hotel and Jaguar Land Rover.

Evidence B

Tata Steel's sustainability mission

"In a free enterprise, the community is not just another stakeholder, but is, in fact, the very purpose of its existence."

It is these words of Jamsetji Tata, Founder of Tata Steel that have shaped the company's culture of social responsibility.

At Tata Steel, the benefits of wealth creation extend beyond the business, flowing into the communities in which the company operates. 5

Tata Steel's long term strategy is focused on sustainability. It is the combination of social, environmental and economic elements that ensures that the business is sustainable for all stakeholders. 10

Evidence C

Tata Group would never favour a hostile takeover

Tata Group would never favour a hostile takeover said its former chief Ratan Tata. "What I mean is that if a company doesn't want us, we're not going to take it by force."

"What we do before we acquire a company is spend a lot of time looking at the management and the work ethics and the corporate culture of that company," he said.

"We have walked away from companies which would be good business fits for us, but its method of operation would be too different and we have not bought it."

Tata to buy US firm Cambric Corporation

*Tata has taken over US-based Cambric Corporation, an engineering services company with a significant presence in Eastern Europe, for $32.5 million.*

*"The acquisition will strengthen Tata's global footprint and capacity to provide specialist engineering services to a diverse set of existing and new clients, especially in Europe," said Patrick McGoldrick, Managing Director and CEO of Tata Technologies.*

Cambric's customers include leading global players in heavy machinery, agricultural, off-highway and automotive companies.

As European Acquisition Struggles, Tata Steel Takes $1.6 Billion Write-Down

Tata Steel, India's largest steel producer, said in May 2013 that it would take a $1.6 billion write-down (adjusting the value of an asset downwards), citing the 'weaker macroeconomic and market environment in Europe.' The trouble stems mainly from Tata Group's acquisition of Corus.

Tata Group made an aggressive push into Europe, buying Corus for $9.6 billion in 2007. But the deal, just before the onset of the financial crisis, was ill-timed. Since the acquisition, demand for steel in Europe has fallen by about 30%, including about 8% in the company's last fiscal year, which ended in March.

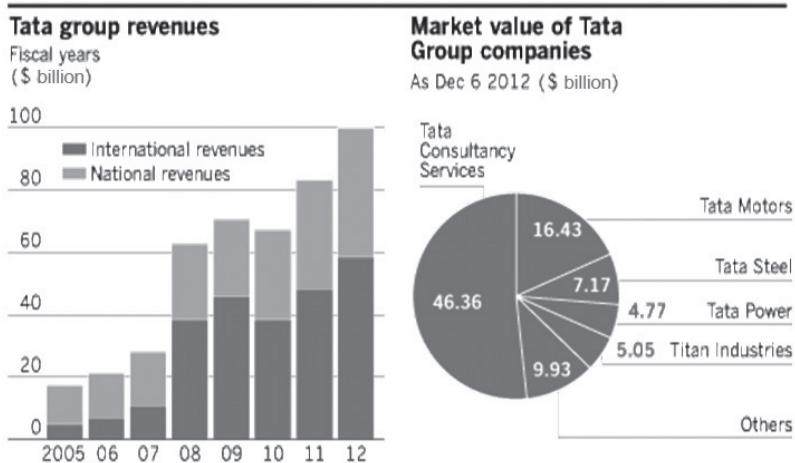

Like competitors, Tata Group's problems go beyond Europe, as demand for steel slumps amid the global economic weakness. Tata Group reported a $139 million loss for the last three months of 2012.
