3.

In recent years, the government has emphasised the importance of improving standards in health and social care provision. This has been evidenced through:

- the introduction of clinical governance
- greater external regulation through registration and inspection units in health and social care
- the creation of the National Institute of Clinical Excellence (NICE)
- the creation of the Healthcare Commission.

Clinical governance refers to the accountability of staff when p and services in health care. Explain why this is important.	roviding treatr
