Question 1

Study the following source material and then answer the questions which follow.

Source A Adapted from a speech given by Mussolini in 1934 about the Corporate State

Corporations are established to provide the wealth, political power and welfare for the Italian people. It is necessary that these institutions, which we have created, shall be noticed as institutions through which Italians can improve their standard of life. The labourer, the peasant, should be able to tell himself and his loved ones: 'If I
5 am better off, I owe it to the Corporations which Fascism has created for the benefit of the Italian people'.

Source B Adapted from a lecture given by the exiled leader of the Italian Communist Party, Palmiro Togliatti, in Moscow, 1935

The Fascist Party claims that Corporations were created to improve the living standards of the Italian people. This is a falsehood! Corporations were organised by the Fascist Regime in Italy only after all democratic liberties had been denied. Corporations were only organised after the workers had been deprived of all 5 representation, when all political parties had been destroyed, and when trade union freedom and freedom of the press had been crushed. Corporations were only created when every other possibility of expression for the Italian worker had been eliminated. Even if Corporations had some importance, they would not be able to do anything unless approved of by the Fascist Party.
