

GCE MARK SCHEME (LEGACY)

SUMMER 2016

HISTORY - UNIT HY2
DEPTH STUDY 2

REBELLION AND REPUBLIC, c. 1629-1660

1232/02

INTRODUCTION

This marking scheme was used by WJEC for the 2016 examination. It was finalised after detailed discussion at examiners' conferences by all the examiners involved in the assessment. The conference was held shortly after the paper was taken so that reference could be made to the full range of candidates' responses, with photocopied scripts forming the basis of discussion. The aim of the conference was to ensure that the marking scheme was interpreted and applied in the same way by all examiners.

It is hoped that this information will be of assistance to centres but it is recognised at the same time that, without the benefit of participation in the examiners' conference, teachers may have different views on certain matters of detail or interpretation.

WJEC regrets that it cannot enter into any discussion or correspondence about this marking scheme.

QUESTION: 1(b)

How important was the conduct of the King in bringing about his execution in 1649?

Candidates are expected to analyse and evaluate both the content and the authorship of the sources as part of an enquiry into the importance of the conduct of the King in bringing about his execution in 1649. Candidates are also expected to use their own knowledge of the period to demonstrate understanding of the importance of the conduct of the King in bringing about his execution. In relation to the set enquiry and in their analysis of the sources, candidates may consider some of the following issues:

- answers will refer to the importance of the attitude and conduct of the King as expressed in Source B.
- the role of senior army officers in deciding the fate of the King will also be assessed.

Candidates are expected to analyse and evaluate both the content and the authorship of the sources as part of an enquiry into the significance of the Personal Rule in the government of the kingdom. Candidates are also expected to use their own knowledge of the period to demonstrate understanding of the significance of the Personal Rule to the government of the kingdom. In relation to the set enquiry and in their analysis of the sources, candidates may consider some of the following issues:

- the significance that the Personal Rule made to the government of the kingdom. The Crown's authority gave the government its power to administer the kingdom and enforce its laws.
- contemporaries such as Mostyn thought that the King was abusing his power by his arbitrary rule and by manipulating the law.
- there will be some evaluation comments on the authorship of both sources – Mostyn was a wealthy and influential landowner and a powerful figure in local government. As a form Parliamentarian he was opposed to the king. Laud is part of the establishment and is biased in favour of the Personal Rule and the government of the kingdom by the King.

INDICATIVE CONTENT FOR PART (c)

NOTE: This content is not prescriptive and candidates are not expected to mention all the material referred to below. Each answer will be assessed on its merits according to the generic mark scheme as well as the indicative content.

QUESTION: 1(c)

Do you agree with the interpretation that Parliament was mainly responsible for causing the Civil War?

Candidates are expected to show an understanding of how aspects of the past have been interpreted in different ways. They are also expected to demonstrate their ability to analyse and evaluate source material and use it to support arguments. Answers will consider the content and authorship of the sources and use their own knowledge of other interpretations in making their judgement about the interpretation that Parliament was mainly responsible for causing the Civil War. Some of the issues to consider may include:

Candidates are invited to enter into a debate on the extent that Parliament was mainly responsible for causing the Civil War. Candidates should be able to consider whether this interpretation is valid and supported or is there evidence to the contrary?

- answers will consider the standpoint of each author and the date of writing. The issue of contemporary evidence and hindsight will feature in the explanation.
- Source C can be used to support the interpretation that Parliament was to blame for causing the war. The evidence comes from the King however, so it is heavily biased. However, it is clear that a large part of the responsibility lies with Parliament.
- the historian gives a different interpretation. He is clearly blaming the monarchy for the outbreak of war. Charles' failure to act on key issues such as religion were the real reason for war according to Morrill.
- candidates will consider alternative interpretations about the causes of the war such as the animosity of the Scots and the Irish and the growing power of the middle and merchant classes.

QUESTION: 2(c)

Do you agree with the interpretation that Charles I was mainly responsible for causing the Civil War?

Candidates are expected to show an understanding of how aspects of the past have been interpreted in different ways. They are also expected to demonstrate their ability to analyse and evaluate source material and use it to support arguments. Answers will consider the content and authorship of the sources and use their own knowledge of other interpretations in making their judgement about the interpretation that Charles I was responsible for causing the Civil War. Some of the issues to consider may include:

Candidates are invited to enter into a debate on the extent to which Charles I was mainly responsible for causing the Civil War. Candidates should be able to consider whether this interpretation is valid or is there evidence to the contrary?

- answers will refer generally to the authorship of the sources and link this to the view that Charles I was guilty of causing the Civil War.
- the modern historian in Source D has the view that Charles caused the war because of his belief in divine right. He thought he was infallible and this led him to rule in a despotic manner because he thought he was acting in the best interests of his people.
- the contemporary source, by the King himself can be used to support a different interpretation. It is biased but as it is given in the manner of a death-bed confession it may well reflect the truth of what the King thought and believed to be the truth. This could be used to argue that it was pressure from Parliament that caused the conflict to break out.
- candidates will consider other possible interpretations for the outbreak of the war such as the position of the Scots and the Irish and the growing power of radicalism.

INDICATIVE CONTENT FOR PART (d)

NOTE: This content is not prescriptive and candidates are not expected to mention all the material referred to below. Each answer will be assessed on its merits according to the generic mark scheme as well as the indicative content.

QUESTION: 1(d)

How useful are Sources C, E and F to an understanding of the causes and events of the Civil War?

Candidates are expected to demonstrate their ability to analyse and evaluate a range of source material with a high degree of discrimination. Source evaluation skills should focus on discussing the strengths and the limitations of the nominated sources. To judge utility, there should be consideration of the content and the authorship of the nominated sources to discuss reliability, bias, purpose and validity, as appropriate. Candidates are also expected to demonstrate their ability to discuss the sources in the wider context associated with issue. Some of the issues to consider may include:

- the sources are really useful in considering certain aspects of the causes of the Civil War. Both sides were equally stubborn.
- the sources are also limited in that only one of the three relate to events during the second Civil War. Both sides appear to appear to be as aggressive as the other.
- the King was stubborn and his own worst enemy. Cromwell too was stubborn and determined to punish those who opposed him even if they were former comrade.
- answers will consider the strengths and limitations of the sources in by giving a clear indication of the problems that existed in the kingdom and their effect on the relationship between the King and his people. This helps explain the reasons why the nation drifted to war.
- there should be some discussion of the wider range of sources that could be of use in understanding developments during this period

QUESTION: 2(d)

How useful are Sources B, E and F in understanding the causes and events of the Civil War?

Candidates are expected to demonstrate their ability to analyse and evaluate a range of source material with a high degree of discrimination. Source evaluation skills should focus on discussing the strengths and the limitations of the nominated sources. To judge utility, there should be consideration of the content and the authorship of the nominated sources to discuss reliability, bias, purpose and validity, as appropriate. Candidates are also expected to demonstrate their ability to discuss the sources in the wider context associated with the causes and events of the Civil War. Some of the issues to consider may include:

- the sources give a clear indication of some key events during and after the war with strong hints that suggest that not all was well in the kingdom.
- answers will consider the strengths and limitations of the sources in that they focus on events after 1641. In addition the views of a modern historian are represented alongside those of biased contemporaries.
- the behaviour of parliamentary troops had the potential to turn the people against them and perhaps even support the king.
- many people were sorry to see the end of royal rule for the alternative – republican government - did not seem to have made things better.
- there should be some discussion of the wider range of sources that could be of use in understanding developments during this period.
