A passer-by calls an ambulance and Ashia is taken to hospital. The hospital is so busy and short-staffed that she waits for two hours to have her head X-rayed. An hour later Dr Crane reads the X-ray and then tells Ashia that she can go home. Dr Crane rushes off to deal with another emergency.

The next day Ashia returns to hospital with a bad headache and blurred vision. A second X-ray reveals a skull fracture resulting in a blood clot pressing on her brain. Ashia has an emergency operation but dies without regaining consciousness. Medical evidence suggests that the initial injury was so serious that Ashia was almost certain to die even if Dr Crane had spotted it on the first X-ray.

The ponies are so scared that they break out of their field through a broken gate which Clive has not fixed. They knock Nina over and break her arm.
