1.

Tony is 14 years old and lives with his mother, Tracey, and her new partner, Matt. Tracey and Matt have twin daughters who are one year old. Tony does not like Matt or the twins. He is very rude to Matt and feels that the twins take up most of his mother's time. Tony's father left home when he was five and he has not seen him since. Tony does not like school and when he does attend he behaves inappropriately. For example, he bullies other pupils, especially when he feels his favourite teacher has not given him enough attention.

(a) (i) Using only the information given, identify two possible reasons why Tony may have started to behave inappropriately.

(c) More and more people who have mental health problems are being treated in the community using assertive care management rather than in institutions. Assertive care management involves a structured programme of telephone-based consultations, following the setting up of an agreed care plan and objectives. Care managers provide support and information to patients to achieve improvement in self-care and health status.

Evaluate the use of treating people who have mental health problems in this way.

3.

Rami is five years old and has just started primary school. She says she does not like school and she cries herself to sleep every night. Rami lives with her grandparents who find it very difficult to deal with her behaviour. They find it particularly distressing that every time they get Rami as far as the school gates, she has a tantrum and has to be taken back home again. Rami's parents died in a car crash when she was only 18 months old.

(a) Rami's grandparents take her to see a psychologist who tries positive reinforcement to try to get her to go to school.

(b) John Bowlby was a psychoanalyst who was particularly interested in the bonding, or attachments, children make early in their lives. He argued that if people are separated from their parents, or do not have a secure bond with them, they will have problems making close and stable relationships with other people.

Discuss to what extent the work of Bowlby might explain the problems Rami is experiencing.
