BRIEF – PEOPLE AND PLACES: OTHER COUNTRIES, OTHER CUSTOMS

The world of today is often called a global village, but it's a village inhabited by people from many different cultures. While diversity makes the world more interesting and enjoyable and opens up new possibilities for friendship, it can also cause misunderstandings. One way of overcoming these misunderstandings is to find out about the people and customs of other parts of the world.

Carry out research to find out about a particular area of the world that appeals to you. Use the information you find to create an interactive multimedia product that could be used by others to learn about the area and its people and customs.

The interactive multimedia product must:

- Appeal to a wide audience
- Be entertaining
- Be educational
- Be easy to operate and user friendly
- Make good use of audio and video material.
