Mark Scheme

2009 examination - June series

This mark scheme uses the new numbering system which is being introduced for examinations from June 2010

Mark schemes are prepared by the Principal Examiner and considered, together with the relevant questions, by a panel of subject teachers. This mark scheme includes any amendments made at the standardisation meeting attended by all examiners and is the scheme which was used by them in this examination. The standardisation meeting ensures that the mark scheme covers the candidates' responses to questions and that every examiner understands and applies it in the same correct way. As preparation for the standardisation meeting each examiner analyses a number of candidates' scripts: alternative answers not already covered by the mark scheme are discussed at the meeting and legislated for. If, after this meeting, examiners encounter unusual answers which have not been discussed at the meeting they are required to refer these to the Principal Examiner.

It must be stressed that a mark scheme is a working document, in many cases further developed and expanded on the basis of candidates' reactions to a particular paper. Assumptions about future mark schemes on the basis of one year's document should be avoided; whilst the guiding principles of assessment remain constant, details will change, depending on the content of a particular examination paper.

GENERAL PRINCIPLES

Assessment Unit 1 asks candidates to answer two questions: the first based on an unseen pair of texts; the second based on a thematic Anthology of texts. Candidates will take a clean copy of the Anthology into the examination room. Both questions will require candidates to compare:

- how the writers structure and present their material
- how the purpose and context of each text influence language choices
- the attitudes and ideas of the writers and/or speakers.

Examiners should first be aware of the relevant Assessment Objectives, as described in the specification and printed in this Mark Scheme. Candidates will be assessed on their success in attaining these Assessment Objectives in their answers.

Candidates will be expected to demonstrate appropriate expertise in the following areas:

- the application of linguistic and literary approaches to texts
- the understanding and identification of how language, form, structure and presentation create and shape the meaning of texts
- the understanding and evaluation of the importance of context in creating and shaping the meaning of texts both in their production and their reception
- the comparison of attitudes and ideas expressed in texts.

The question tests Assessment Objectives AO1, AO2, AO3

- AO1 select and apply relevant concepts and approaches from integrated linguistic and literary study using appropriate terminology and accurate, coherent written expression
- AO2 demonstrate detailed critical understanding in analysing the ways in which structure, form and language shape meanings in a range of spoken and written texts
- AO3 use integrated approaches to explore relationships between texts, analysing and evaluating the significance of contextual factors in their production and reception

The focus for each question is shown by some indicative content. It is, of course, possible that some candidates may respond in ways different than those listed, yet whose answers contain appropriate and valid insights. If examiners believe that such scripts satisfy criteria for high achievement, then those scripts should be rewarded accordingly. Examiners are encouraged to mark positively, rewarding strengths and achievements.

Text A is a poem by Michael Hamburger, written in 1950. He is writing about reflections in the water of Paddington Canal.

Text B is part of a recent information and resource pack for school children.

Compare the ways in which the two texts achieve their purposes.

You should compare:

- how the texts are structured and present their material
- how the purposes and contexts of the texts influence language choices.

INDICATIVE CONTENT

Examiners should remember that it is essential that candidates compare the texts.

NB The following list of ideas is not exhaustive. Examiners should always be ready to reward any valid points made by candidates, even if they are not covered by this indicative content. Points should always be supported by relevant textual reference.

Many different ways of travelling are written or spoken about in the Anthology.

In your answer, write about some of the following where appropriate:

- word choice
- figurative language
- grammar
- sound patterning
- form and structure
- layout and presentation
- · contexts of production and reception.

INDICATIVE CONTENT

Examiners should remember that it is essential that candidates compare their chosen texts.

NB The following list of ideas is not exhaustive. Examiners should always be ready to reward any valid points made by candidates, even if they are not covered by this indicative content. Points should always be supported by relevant textual reference.

Not every text in the Anthology is suitable for answering this question. The most suitable would appear to be:

Travel by Water

Carnet de Voyage National Geographic 'Zaire' Heart of Darkness The Innocents Abroad

Travel on Foot

'Lancashire' 'Always our Likely Finale' 'Helm Crag' (Wainwright)

'The Grasmere Journals' (Dorothy Wordsworth)

However, examiners can expect to find candidates answering on many other, if not all, of the texts in the Anthology and, of course, they should treat each answer on its merits.
