SECTION B: VOICES IN LITERATURE

Answer ONE question on the text you have studied.

2 The Bloody Chamber: Angela Carter

Extract: 'The Courtship of Mr Lyon' from "The voice that seemed to issue from a cave full of echoes" (page 49) to "he went on all fours" (page 50).

Using this extract as your starting point and with reference to one other story of your choice, you should:

- explore Carter's manipulation of language to develop the voice of the lion and the reaction of the girl to it
- examine how Carter exploits the voices of her characters in both stories to comment on attitudes towards characters who are different.

(AO1 = 20, AO2 = 30)

(Total for Question 2 = 50 marks)

3 paddy clarke ha ha ha: Roddy Doyle

Extract from "When Indians died" (page 84) to "but it wasn't funny, not really" (page 85).

Using this extract as your starting point, you should:

- explore how the voice of Doyle's child narrator incorporates that of the adults who have influenced him
- examine some of the ways in which this manipulation of language contributes to the effectiveness of the novel as a whole.

(AO1 = 20, AO2 = 30)

(Total for Question 3 = 50 marks)

4 The Color Purple: Alice Walker

Extract from "He come home with a girl from round Gray" (page 6) to "I don't bleed no more" (page 7).

Using this extract as your starting point, you should:

- explore Walker's manipulation of Celie's voice to trace shifts in her attitude from one letter to the next
- examine how these shifts are shaped by events outside the letters themselves, in the novel as a whole.

(AO1 = 20, AO2 = 30)

(Total for Question 4 = 50 marks)

5 Restoration: Rose Tremain

Extract from “My stipend from the King as Celia’s husband” (page 44) to “earnestly hoped it would not be so” (page 45).

Using this extract as your starting point, you should:

- explore how Tremain manipulates the voice of Merivel to convey his attitude towards his marriage at this point in the novel
- examine how his changing attitude towards marriage (and his wife) is conveyed to the reader as the novel progresses.

(AO1 = 20, AO2 = 30)

(Total for Question 5 = 50 marks)

6 Address Unknown: Kressman Taylor

Extract: Letter ‘May 18, 1933’ from “I am in distress at the press reports” to “Write me, my friend, and set my mind at ease”.

Using this extract as your starting point, you should:

- explore how Taylor manipulates the voice of Max in this letter to capture his distress at reports from Germany about the treatment of the Jews
- examine how Taylor uses language to convey how Max’s trust in Martin changes as the novella progresses.

(AO1 = 20, AO2 = 30)

(Total for Question 6 = 50 marks)

7 Cloudstreet: Tim Winton

Extract from “Lester and Oriel Lamb are Godfearing people” (page 23) to “Give us a kiss then” (page 24).

Using this extract as your starting point, you should:

- explore Winton’s use of narrative voice and perspective to introduce the Lamb family, and to comment on their attitudes and values
- examine how these values are sustained or challenged as the novel progresses and how this is reflected in Winton’s use of narrative voice and perspective.

(AO1 = 20, AO2 = 30)

(Total for Question 7 = 50 marks)

8 Dubliners: James Joyce

Extract: 'A Little Cloud' from "Every step brought him nearer to London" (page 68) to "his back against the counter and his feet planted far apart" (page 69).

Using this extract as your starting point and with reference to one other story of your choice, you should:

- explore how Joyce's representation of Little Chandler's dreams contrasts with the reality of his life
- examine how contrasting voices and perspectives combine to give insight into the lives of Joyce's characters.

(AO1 = 20, AO2 = 30)
