

English Language (Specification A)

ENGA1

Unit 1 Seeing through Language

Monday 11 January 2010 9.00 am to 11.00 am

For this paper you must have:

• a 12-page answer book.

Time allowed

• 2 hours

Instructions

- Use black ink or black ball-point pen.
- Write the information required on the front of your answer book. The Examining Body for this paper is AQA. The Paper Reference is ENGA1.
- There are two sections.

Section A: Language and Mode

Section B: Language Development

- Answer Question 1 from Section A and either Question 2 or Question 3 from Section B.
- At the very start of the examination, tear along the perforations to detach the question on page 2.
- Do all rough work in your answer book. Cross through any work that you do not want to be marked.

Information

- The marks for questions are shown in brackets. There are 45 marks for Question 1 and 45 marks for either Question 2 or Question 3.
- The maximum mark for this paper is 90.
- You will be marked on your ability to:
  - use good English
  - organise information clearly
  - use specialist vocabulary where appropriate.

Advice

• It is recommended that you spend 30 minutes on the reading and preparation of the data to be analysed in answering the questions. It is recommended that you then spend 45 minutes writing your Section A answer and 45 minutes writing your Section B answer.

SECTION A – Language and Mode

Answer Question 1.

You may detach this page by tearing along the perforations.

1 Text A, which you will find on page 4, is a section of an Australian Broadcasting Corporation message board about graffiti.

Text B, which you will find on page 5, is part of an article from the online edition of The Guardian about graffiti artist Banksy.

- Describe and explain the main mode characteristics of the texts.
- Analyse and evaluate how the participants in Text A and the writer of Text B use language to achieve their purposes and create meanings.

In your answer you should consider:

vocabulary and meanings
grammatical features and their effects how the texts are organised how the participants in Text A use language to communicate their opinions how the writer of Text B uses language to express facts, ideas and opinions.

(45 marks)

Something to spray

You may not have heard of him, but you've probably seen his work. From policemen with smiley faces to the Pulp Fiction killers firing bananas, Banksy's subversive images are daubed on walls everywhere – and now he's putting on an exhibition. Simon Hattenstone meets Britain's No 1 graffiti artist

Picture gallery: highlights from Banksy's show

Thursday July 17, 2003

The Guardian

Banksy is Britain's most celebrated graffiti artist, but anonymity is vital to him because graffiti is illegal.

The day he goes public is the day the graffiti ends.

His black and white stencils are beautiful, witty and gently subversive: policemen with smiley faces, rats with drills, monkeys with weapons of mass destruction (or, when the mood takes him, mass disruption) little girls cuddling up to missiles, police officers walking great flossy poodles, Samuel Jackson and John Travolta in Pulp Fiction firing bananas instead of guns, a beefeater daubing "Anarchy" on the walls. He signs his pieces in a chunky, swirling typeface. Sometimes there are just words, in the same chunky typeface – puns and ironies, statements and incitements. At traditional landmarks, he often signs "This is not a photo opportunity". On establishment buildings he may sign "By Order National Highways Agency This Wall Is A Designated Graffiti Area". (Come back a few days later, and people will have obediently tagged the wall.)

Banksy started doing graffiti when he was a miserable 14-year-old schoolboy. School never made sense to him – he had problems, was expelled, did some time in prison for petty crime, but he doesn't want to go into details.

Graffiti, he says, made him feel better about himself, gave him a voice. And Bristol had a thriving graffiti culture. "But because I was quite crap with a spray can, I started cutting out stencils instead." I tell him about the time I graffito'd someone's name across the road. He nods, approvingly. "Ah, that's the key to graffiti, the positioning." I tell him that I felt guilty – not because I had broken the law but because I had used a can of paint to get revenge and the boy had to live with his name Duluxed across the road.

"Yeah, it's all about retribution really," he says. "Just doing a tag is about retribution. If you don't own a train company then you go and paint on one instead. It all comes from that thing at school when you had to have name tags in the back of something – that makes it belong to you. You can own half the city by scribbling your name over it."
