

Examiners' Report June 2018

IAL English Literature WET02 01

Edexcel and BTEC Qualifications

Edexcel and BTEC qualifications come from Pearson, the UK's largest awarding body. We provide a wide range of qualifications including academic, vocational, occupational and specific programmes for employers. For further information visit our qualifications websites at www.edexcel.com or www.btec.co.uk.

Alternatively, you can get in touch with us using the details on our contact us page at www.edexcel.com/contactus.

Giving you insight to inform next steps

ResultsPlus is Pearson's free online service giving instant and detailed analysis of your students' exam results.

- See students' scores for every exam question.
- Understand how your students' performance compares with class and national averages.
- Identify potential topics, skills and types of question where students may need to develop their learning further.

For more information on ResultsPlus, or to log in, visit www.edexcel.com/resultsplus. Your exams officer will be able to set up your ResultsPlus account in minutes via Edexcel Online.

Pearson: helping people progress, everywhere

Pearson aspires to be the world's leading learning company. Our aim is to help everyone progress in their lives through education. We believe in every kind of learning, for all kinds of people, wherever they are in the world. We've been involved in education for over 150 years, and by working across 70 countries, in 100 languages, we have built an international reputation for our commitment to high standards and raising achievement through innovation in education. Find out more about how we can help you and your students at: www.pearson.com/uk.

June 2018 Publications Code WET02_01_1806_ER

All the material in this publication is copyright © Pearson Education Ltd 2018

Introduction

WET02 demands the application of knowledge of literary techniques and features, to produce crafted, analytical answers that are informed by wider critical reading and a variety of contextual factors that shape the production and reception of two studied literary texts.

There are two sections to the paper, each carrying 25 marks. Section A requires the analysis of a studied drama text from pre-1900, Section B requires the analysis of a text from the post-1900 period.In each section, there are 5 texts to choose from, and candidates select one of two questions on their chosen plays. The personal response of the candidate to the question is expected to be supplemented by a demonstration of knowledge and understanding of a variety of critical interpretations of the text (AO5), and relevant contextual details (AOs 3 and 4). Depending on the specific focus of the question, critical interpretations might include reviews of productions in books or periodical publications (contemporary or modern), critical analysis by academic literary scholars, historical evidence of reader/viewer responses, and the aesthetic choices made by actors and directors. Answers which recognise ambiguity in texts, and recognise different potential interpretations, will also be rewarded in AO5, so long as the interpretations are relevant to the specific question focus. Relevant AO3 contexts might include socio-historical information, intellectual history, generic conventions, biographical details, and staging history.

Overall, the work done in this series was considered to be not quite so successful as in previous series. There were more scripts this year in previous series that did not produce work of sufficient quality or depth to move beyond Level 2. In some cases, this was due to candidates opting for one of the more technical questions (such as 'use of irony' in Othello, or 'use of music' in A Streetcar Named Desire) without sufficient depth of knowledge. Once again, AO5 achievement was, as in the June 17 series, the least fully achieved of the four assessed AOs. The series-by-series improvement that has been reported in the use of contextual support for answers, assessed at AOs 3 and 4, was not maintained in this series. Although there were exceptions, such as in the work done on Doctor Faustus, Top Girls, and Waiting for Godot, and in some answers on Streetcar, most questions were supported by contextual materials that lacked depth or, crucially, relevance.

As one marker put it, "With AO3 and AO4, vast over-generalisation was common. Even candidates who can see beyond over-simplified stereotypes often enlist Shakespeare as a proto-feminist or early race campaigner, a dangerous elevation of politics over art, if not done tentatively."

The Behn, Goldsmith and Hansberry attracted only a handful of entries, so the comments in this report pertain to the more 'popular' texts only.

Question 5

TWELFTH NIGHT

Question 5 was approached with confidence. Olivia's changeability was anatomised with regard to both the construction of a complex, interesting character and its contribution to the comic effects of the play. Candidates who saw her sharing a (different but equally noticeable) tendency to selfindulgence with Orsino made fair comment on dramatic structure. Issues of class were raised, which enriched discussion of her relationship with Cesario, but tended to lack sufficient precision to move beyond Level 3 quality for AOs 3 and 4.

Candidates opting for Question 6 were perhaps a little less assured in considering the twin moods of melancholy and joy. (This was evident in all questions that involved a more technical analysis of literary form or specific literary devices - in this case, many answers could not anatomise the precise techniques used by Shakespeare to create and shift the 'mood'). There was a tendency to see the play as uniformly sad until marriage brings joy at the end, supported by Olivia's bereavements, the supposed losses of Viola and Sebastian, and Orsino's lovesickness. Those who qualified this in terms of genre cited the speed with which Olivia is jerked out of mourning by Cesario, the almost inevitable reunion of the twins, and the way Orsino, comically, seems to love being lovesick. There were numerous detailed discussions of Malvolio - how his incarceration darkens the mood of the play, and the tension between the final wedding bells and his cry for revenge.

In both questions, while there were some references to attributed interpretations, AO5 was more often satisfied by the candidates' own recognition of ambivalences and possible viewpoints, which is all well and good, but a familiarity with the interpretations of reviewers, critics, actors and directors would serve to enrich many answers.

Question 7

DOCTOR FAUSTUS

Both questions were tackled with a good degree of confidence. Faustus as an overachiever in his greed for knowledge - often linked explicitly to a kind of intellectual Gluttony - was widely examined, but was also effectively challenged by some who contended that his real lust was not for knowledge but for power. Contexts - humanism, the Renaissance, attitudes to education, the status of religious imperatives - were used appropriately by most candidates, but some provided excessive details of Renaissance humanism and textual analysis was squeezed as a consequence. Those who made extended comparisons between Faustus and the lesser characters were able to show how knowledge imbues both the tragic and comic elements in the play.

The importance of religion, the focus of Question 8, is obvious; candidates considered it from a number of viewpoints and with a good deal – again, sometimes too much - of pertinent contextual knowledge. The humiliation of the Pope was widely discussed in terms of contemporary church politics; the dramatic impact of the Seven Deadly Sins both as a commentary on the tragedy and a source of comic relief was noted; the Angels and the Old Man were investigated for religious and allegorical significance.

In both questions, a large number of candidates grounded their AO5 comment in productions of the play: it is pleasing to see that so many had encountered the drama in a performance context. This is a wonderful answer to Question 7. It covers a huge amount of ground, both in terms of texts and contexts. There is a real sense of intellectual exploration here. It is beautifully written for the most part too. It scored full marks.

Plan
Morture's pos	exentation of Knowledge
Content	Titep pourumens
· Malue's me of allusion to	o Taire: Fauto is the slave of his ais on educatin	Doublation: Foundaring a premainance um umo purso tre medienel poise for won Combaidge rubbaship	who puss the nulitary poice for · Airble's portion - lamentin	remission laming in
I Foundar hash	· Glos production - bules become alive
V	Gloss production - butco become alive on dicyclic maic - first poblogung "recomble busks are banado! -7 ches at "A land angical": 1 - a nighty god" whether leads to his dometall
" Fander ' Anger for kin	walke leads to his downfall
why so wet as a	gic is to him"
· Influence of landedge or	different closees - Elizabethan expositations of my please, look noted.	made and the maidens in an parish done at - · Murchty day gene -	andiena belong more kuntergerke about and who - sin / down	tion - posseritivein of seven deadly sins unser Now James, how don't then	take this? Fi O are feels and real . Jantos' Knowledge of tholog	my doesn't water - he down't some himself (too voice) - ()	Lawfer Landow at the last ch the stage
"J"ll barn long banked. O'N	April 10 philis

In 'Dr James', Unistopher Morlows presents benowledge as an influence that leads Familia John the dork path and to his domfull. Comedic menes within the play also shed light an Knowledge and the paner and regamilability that comes with it. It im be interpreted that Jenter' desire for knowledge and state consequently mus power is went levels him to the his domfull as conventional tragely genre may ruggest. Aristotle's Me Poetics had on influence in the play and therefore youther himself. His homortin or futul Ohomes "nathing so meet as magic is to him". This illustrates the degree of natisfection that Youstus attains when permiss the derk corts. Harrier, we can also interpret that it is this very rome desire that causes Janstons to appear nive. In the some Chorus, it is said that James was "Encelling II, where meet delight disportes In hencely mutters of theology. The metaphonical use and repetition of meet emphasises Yusters' academic capabilities - wonething Mentone alluded to in his own life within the play - and although the honing performed well in maligious studies of functions is nevertheless until to be secretable autions that is as eternal domination. Absolute state state in the strong of the stron flowing established that Jametus alless many have threen not to row himself, this iden is pentraged in the Globe Theatre production of the play. During the last reene, the audience All un ree huifer wouched on the stage were, while Fantes speaks to his rebulan and (Engages is) performs a rulileging rather than chaning to report. This partitioning of larger may Indicate that 'Junitus' fate was inevitable, regurdless of how many 'wholers' he consults with an without their knowledge. Another interpretation is that Jamen has come to terms with this ffile fute and Luifer is ringly lunking in the back of air mind at the most without hom, as Yousters mys during this rollingry "The devil will come, and Yourters wount be downed! This partony the idea that Jantus has become complement with the idea of lite and its insultability, having knowledge of the point he righed while not understuding its consequences at the time. (Maylow male be desired) This relates to Elizabetum ideas of predestination which the intemporary andience would have been familiar with, but also be original "Just tent where Juntes is roved. Thus the difference in arding dones the hunder of browledge on Jourston in a way but the original Jourst' tent did not. Mre ideas reguling knowledge and its influence are further procest within the Chile There production. Most notably in the opening were of the play, "neumonatic books" and various other books are personified with actors holding venup. This demonstrates the lindiness that Justus felt when surrounded by benowledge. Critic Taine also has something to sony on this waterporting that "Justes is the slave of his pensions" Thus, another interpretation is that the books lose award Junitus and make him poverlers. Te iden of forbidden knowledge being glorified is also present in the some production, when uplifing, non-diegetic music cruss in Jambus' font willoging, slouting with "rememble books me howerly " and ending with " a round muzician is a mighty god". The for me of a purdon in the first quite is used to juntapore and emplusive the appeal of All Forbidden mouredge when Illy contrasting of with a paritire religious aspect. Memobile, ((and juste mode) the non-diegetil music ends absurptly upon bearing the rund quote, drawing undiences attention to it, with a contemporary andience not heizy comportable with Medine downing compositions between (mon and a mare) the power man each have and that of a 'god', all through the element of forbidden Knowledge, Justhermore, the weed's reeves in the day also me knowledge to shed light on the much plot and minor it in a humorous way. for enumple, bohin in Leve 6 rugs how "I will make all the nailers in our periods donce at my pleasure stark naked . This is used by Muliare to contrast the previous beene When James all attempts to have a nife rhued device of humanity, regardless of class or education (Human to cu) as knowledge due not impose a hombary on said derine. This is made dem when Rufe mays "Come what don't three with that some book? There can't not need!" (This portrays that) Similarly, this purtous that despite keing mable to read, lover dusses also Three De rome derive (to b) for 12mouledge and will attempt to go out of their many to attain it. Moreover, the momentity play gence (clo) was used under the Cultolic Church to teach people of moral lessons regarding the regularistics of rin and domestion. Werlove, (Ma) having a Andertant generation watching his plungs, wester a Chestrical twist to this gene with the permission of the sense dendly sins. In the Globe There production we see them rise from the Most floorboards, representative of hell, yet Justus says "O this feets my and" when asked by high "how don't the this?" We im interpret that the knowledge gained of the "puritives" of hell and dente to be down to it enting Youstura thus demonstrating air condendment. Henere, we im also sitempret that Jourtes was to him, truefore this burnledge isedend led him to satisfy Luifer in letting lim Ma hear all what he wrents to hem from Junitus.

Unistoper Marline presents browledge as being desirable element that different as to attain. Humer due to Me Yourtus' Wen heiz hubis he is nuive and does not undertain the responsibilities that much knowledge holds, thus bading him to his downfall as comentional trapeday gene Magyests.

Top Level 5

Question 9

OTHELLO

As usual, Othello was much the most popular text in Section A. Most candidates showed real engagement with the play, recognising the fascinations, fallibilities and frustrations of the characters, though this enthusiasm did not always translate into consistent or substantial AO achievement.

Answers to Question 9, focused on prejudice and corruption, were mostly centred, quite rightly, on race and gender. While contextual comments on contemporary attitudes tended to be simplistic, they were, for all that, firmly anchored to the text - there were more or less detailed discussions of the racist language of lago and Brabantio, the treatment of Desdemona and Emilia by their husbands, and the status of Bianca. There were also refreshing detours from the main highway. Some took 'corrupt' as a transitive verb and charted lago's destruction of Othello, which covered the key terms of the question. Others asked, if women were only good for bed, kitchen and delivery room, what do we make of Desdemona's rebellious marriage, her cogent public defence of it, and Emilia's fearless moral denunciation of her husband and her master? Some challenged the conventional view of Jacobean racism by pointing out that Africans were often seen as attractively exotic. Hints of political corruption in Venice were found in lago's petition to 'three great ones of the city' and the Duke's willingness to overlook a questionable marriage which eventually kills the bride's father because he needs Othello to lead against the Turks. However, most treatments of corruption and prejudice were more simplistic than the textual analysis they were trying to support, and on this question, as on Questions 5 and 6, AOs 3, 4 and 5 were not so good as the work for AOs 1 and 2.

Irony, the focus of Q10, offered a wealth of material - dramatic, linguistic, situational, metatheatrical.lago, as he does, and must, took centre stage for most. There were many relevant and often perceptive analyses of the ironies thrown up by his relationships to audience and characters; interesting comment on the irony that he who warns against the green-eyed monster is the most jealous person in the play; the bottomless irony that the chief villain of the play (and possibly of all literature) is the only main character to survive in the end; and much else. While lago starred, ultimately comments covered the whole play. However, a significant proportion of those opting for Question 10 were not equipped with a sufficient understanding of irony to succeed.

For both Othello questions, very few candidates neglected AO2. There was effective use of the wordlevel analysis in charting Othello's moral, emotional and linguistic disintegration, so that such comment supported dramatic structure and the thematic irony of Othello in the later scenes reverting to the racial stereotype he had explicitly challenged in the earlier. For AO5, many candidates regularly and productively engaged with interpretations from critics, directors and their own ambivalent responses but a significant minority neglected it entirely, and scores were distinctly suppressed as a consequence.

This is a reasonable attempt at Question 9. The writing is fluent, and the argument controlled. There is an effort to introduce contexts of relevance and alternative interpretations. It might have scored in Level 4 had the answer not been a little on the brief side, and so short of specific textual detail.

'Othello' is a tragedy written by William Shakespeare circa 1603. Through his captivating characters, he explores various themes that even apply to the xeen present world. One of the main ones is the presentation of the values of the world in which the play is Set. It depicts a world Filled with corruption AS TS Elliot had prientioned It is a terrible exposure of human weakness", as it presents a deeply pessimistic view of human relationships. Shakespeare was writting in the Benowers Renaissance, which encouraged him to challenge traditional values, hence portraying Nan ethnic mimority as a noble and civilised hero, whilst making Iago, a white man immoral and destructive 415 Characters and their beliefs depict the Social stereotypes filled with prejudice The relationship between Iago and Othello, is dostructive and possimistic. Othello trusts his ensign their Throughout the play Tago is constantly characterised as honest and noble, while in reality he is immoral and manipulative. Although the tast that the lenaissance is echoed through the fact that the importance of reason is emphasised, and Othello tries to imaintain his best Judgement, and mante lacorial blook, at Desgewoud, e Infidelity, Iago's manipulation takes over him, and he blindly believes him eventually losing his mind Jago Feeds Othello's insecurities. In Elizabethan England Moors were portrayed as violent savages and in general they were presented in literaturore as Pustful dangerous villoins (e.g. in Titus Andronicus), although Othello in the beginning appears noble and self-controlled going against those stereotypes at the end he seems to confirm them. Many made in critics have explored the idea of 'atherness' in othello He is on outsider, and even be knows it deep down, that he is not fully accepted from the Venetian socioty. He is even called a parpary norse and he has been compared to the devil , echoing the social prejudice at the time. Togo, his trustee manipulates him into believing that the his marriage with Desdemand is 'nature erring from itself' and unusual and subsequently he is feeding his insecurities turning him into a pown for his game. The audience aknowledges Iogo's hatred for Othello, however his motives are unclear, which is why he is a true villain as he enjoys revenge the manipulates exergence anyone he has to the appears selfish and even at the end of the play he doesn't royed his true motives giving him a certain power In a Harrist reading of the play, Iogo's motives stem from a struggle for paner. He hates otherlo because he is in a higher hierarchy than him and because he choose Cassio as his lieutenant. However, if this was his true mative for revenge he had no reason to continue after The Cossio Post his position and he took his place Ioop was enough wanibrilative and gestructive by vature. He gebicts the corruption that existed. His relationship with Othello is deeply pessimistic as it was one-sided . For Otherio it was a Friendship Filled with trust whilst for 1000 it was just a part of his manipulation Social projudice is depicted throughout the play Emilia works as a foil to Desdemona Whilst Desdemona Which is why Besdemana is an easy target to the play's antogonist Although Venetians were seen as sophisticated, Venetian women were thought to be promiscous, Iago voices this stereotype by calling Desdemand a 'super-subtle Venetion' Implying that all Venetian women were untaithful. Women were also expected to be virgins until morriage, a man's honour was closely fied to his wife's (or daughter's reputation) which is why othello appears

So distraught to the idea of Desdemona's infidelity. Her weakness is her femininity she wants to help cassio, which is why she turns to a child-like behaviour and doesn't know when to stop. Emilia however, also understands her duty to her husband which is why she betrays to Desdemona's trust. In a reminist interpretation, Dosdemora and Emilia, echoe the oppression women felt in a male dominated sacrety. They had to appear a certoiin way and they belonged to their hosbands In a nutshell, the relationships in Otholio are destructive. They echoe a world filled with manipulation and natrod facial Prejudice played an active role their society. Idao to as the villain of is an embodiment of the pessimistic idea about the of Othello's Fatal world as he takes advantage Flaw.

Be sure to clinch your arguments with a wide range of evidence from the text. Context is only fully rewardable when it is supporting direct analysis of the play.

The next script, also answering Question 9, is far more successful: the analysis is more focused on the question's key terms, and the contextual support for the argument is far more substantial.

Shakespeare depicts a world that is filled with 1980s vices of corruption as well as prejudice to through the plays exploration of different circumstances experienced by the fibrial prologonist. Others Theorems in anthropostogical interpretations of the Eticotethors information and the play was written as and as promise for the settleton on the fate of the throughout, and one presented as bearing a having a large impact on the sicon circumstance of the churacters themselves, as well as being tools used by Shakespoon to offer his anthropostogical interpretation of the screen in Elizabethan England

Philiphice and corruption are presented through the clerogology treatment of Othello by the play's antagonists; his showed thin is something that is used against his otherwise name by his envisors the rivals, such as Kaderiga and Tago.

Tortoe pl to the play's opening act, we alsterne Tago and Raderiga speaking ill of Othello as they 'rove' bastantia regarding the elegement of Desdemma.—

They the shoot about a the othello, 'an ad black and has 'toping your (his] white eve! 'The through the elder connotation to othello's dark.

Shinned and elderly stature (as appoind to the younge and through Tago's dialogue. Additional contrast is already made between the phranes back and "white". The animal imagery associated with the remarks of the name and the ever demotes Otherlo to an animal; thus rendering him inhumane, and noid inhumane metaphor is supported no Snotespeak write the word 'hypothy' through Togo's dialogue. I Thin Homes over observed Togo's Pariste descriptions the regarding offellows be light to The wind 'hypping' itself is most more informal and cost a more way way to describe the vite notice of his lies, but is beneficial in giving is deeper insight into him shahespear complays embeds car themes of complim during instances of severe projectie; Togo's ability to be versable in his use of law level language whist employing a more educated technique (is, the metaphonic relationship schores room and eve displays his unning notice and his ability to decieve surrounding character; but it II with this same ability that he to able to corrupt Brabantia, of course with the aid of the demogration phrases he was An alternate meaning to Tago's said phrase is that the the white could be the auction assetting similarity between 'ewe' and 'you' heard differently when the play would have been the performed. Hence, Shakaspeose Tago could be referencing the fact that the 'Ad black room' that is Otherwise tarnishing his otherwise (white reptation, which opens up the idea of projudice and corruption being putrayed on sales byer than Ingo as an individual

Contextually, Shakespeare's would unding writing of such denogratory dialogue would have heen considered appropriate at said time, and as it was in line with the Mounty of people in Elicatethan England; hearing all a wach character he downted as an 'Old wach com' would not have just an anybody where it would be seen as a form of dravivari, due or comedy, and hence have seriounen removed from it; even Queen Elizabeth feet discontent to people of what and encounged to have turn separed. Known son soppored by believe the source source. and Englished professional Instine Having stallar Shotospear However, Shoheyear's anthropological reflection of this devogation and compt mentality is contrasted in the play, since Othello is a nate a man of a high postion, government, who is respected by the Officials of the play; Variant Othello . ' at speaks the Duke of Vanice you meeting otello in Act 1, Sc. 3. Will even a simple deadjective, Shahespeare assigns under social value to Okello's character through his interactions with other to upper-vass characters in order to contrast the projudice associated with Othello being a person of chow. Such is supported by Shokespear professional Imbas Masterni, who states that States propere's was present in of Othello as being repected is done as a 'sign of hope' from the writer himself that he falls is prejudice-filed idulogies associated with race and colour except be minds of the Elizabethan people. This parallels the view of more contemporary reader who view his prigraice as being a regotive factor in the world depicted in Otheles, as apposed to a more as widely accepted topic in the Elizabethan era.

However, being the tragedy that it is shakespeare pulses this ideological boundary by inhoducing corruption as a firstnesses from that readly in the reneal of.

Otherloss tragic flow, as nell as leads to the tragic elements of the play itself.

It would be not straightforward to Simply being otherlo down due to bein race, and so Shakespeare makes wim well respected and noble to compact this thought

However, the energy of the autogravists, as pecially. Togg, take advantage of Otherlos nature and correspot him through this over corrupt minds; they

Otherlos begins to retainly him through this over corrupt minds;

takes drashic steps to achieve an equilibrium; he is torn as a character between his side of high status; his note as a general, man of the military vs his human side; his was a husband, and as a lover. As As the corruption ensues, to Othello's equilibrium busines more and more inhaborised; to the point where the con it is the conflict between no one, but box of his oides that lead him to murder De demona. The applicated conflict in Orello is natived in Act 3, Sc 3 when Tago first plants the needs of doubt in Okello's mind; your contemplating "If I do prove her hoggard, / ... I'd whistle her Ag and let her down the wind , he states. Others describes letting go of bestemma in a porte way, be Shohepeare implements the molophon of a bear anthropomophic metaphor of Desdemana being libra a 'haggard', of unboined howk, in Okello's blank verse. He de describe has he would "whishe to the " if she were to be prover quilty of adultary, as accordanced he a when a howk being intrained or unloyal; he firster state that he would 'let he down the wind', commaining to leaving the birds downwind so they are flow away with the wind itself in attempt to distance themselves from the books. In This more gendle description is controlled willing the some lines as we sheeve Ingo's complian take in toll; "She's gone; I am abused , and my relief / Must be to looke he" by states. Here, the aemartic becomes more grim, and the imagery much darker, due to the little between phroses act as "abused" and "looke". Now, Otherho describes the poin and anger he would feel if for he supposed acts were preven to be true, thence, we observe as the conflict between his more human side, of being a gentle love and his side that supresents him one a more lessous manner.

Shakespeare corrupts Obclus and those conflicts him through the exception of Tago Tago's manipulation so as to change the elementy position and otercotypical views on collowed people versus white people; contag to popular belief, it is the white character to perform the manipulation and is the bringe of the most ill-tent of action, possess instead of the noble Moor, Obello Shakespeare thus aims to post remove the trade ideologie by presenting to the audience that the treatment has the same effect book ways; Irrespective of physical attributes. The steventypes to this scenario become remod as the standard Near, Obello, is acholy more thought than the steventypically (harest Tago'

To conclude, Snokespeare presents be values of the unit in which the play is set on having elements that are drawn contextably from named in Elizabethan history, last but are researed and postanged contractingly by the set essence of the characters and a thin to interactions with surrounding characters as until as made and analysmists in order to further present. Inotherpeare's anthropological and rather hopeful is prediction of what a society that let go of pracial threatypes could become, parallelling the contemporary reads. Also, done to the play's pragic nature, he allows forces of corruption to bismoph is through creating to the contemporary to bismoph is through creating to the contemporary to bismoph is through creating to the contemporary to bismoph is through creating to the contemporaries.

High Level 5

Question 10

This attempt at Question 10 is mostly successful. It shows a good (though not excellent) understanding of different types of irony and how they are deployed by Shakespeare. AOs 3, 4, and 5 are all adequately met, but AO2 is perhaps the answer's strongest feature, in the analysis of the soliloguy as a vehicle for dramatic irony. On the whole, while there are some aspects of the answer that feel more in keeping with a Level 3 score, it makes enough relevant points to get into the middle of Level 4.

As we go through life we go through events which present us with an unexpected and new perspective to was we are going through at the time. In the blag 'Otherlo' the playwingut William Statespeare presents the decree thoug as a method of heightening the tragedy. oue character who suffers an unfortunate yet trogte ironic fate is he donocher Desdemona. She is firstly prevent to the audience by other character's using words counte and lamb' to describe her which imedito have be pare, innocent and hormles. Therefore by shahespeare firsty naminal Desdemana which posses the word Demonso he is thediaty creating an atmosphere of wong around her. Secondly by Othello referring to des Desdemona as 'the aboil' not only is shahepeore capatavity the of women in their own manages which a until of society's very that women become unfaith fal but also & for there emphasising

The troops protogonist Ofhelio is also presented by shakes--peare to be a character plagued by Irong. This can be said because, like what a critic ourse stated cothello is one of the most unheroic heros to be in one of Shahespeares plags'. For example firstly offielios com weathers or traptonile which is his insecurity inediat-- ly move him on extremy home donacter closus gerral within the weather aimy. Therefore by having Other fall importate with an to the racism present in venecian society as he is a moor that leading him to suffer by the incider outsider culture towar leads to him feeling like he doeint belong in venice which leads to his insecurity shales peake successfully Create's other to be an extremy strong and successful general and is not mentaly thong. The Trong between Others phasical theigh and success here his mental Character is farther broaght out in the play by Desdemana stating of would listen to the stories he told my father ... and for what been been through, I would him for them' that copearing tee rumeuse amount of sucress and Dower Ornello endured by being a samesful general so mach so that he was able to get Dedemana to break The the sock I norm of there being interacial manarges during that period of time.

By Gosher Yarry Desdemana 15 a prize, a spoil of war, the anglience is tarthere bresented mith he theme of Irong in the play. This can be said become Shakes peace treates thoughthe the immediate foundation of Desdemonas and Otherios relationship by brining to light how heither one possessed a protound understocking of each other in this manage, of how other only verwed dedemans as Garcher States ' A prize, and spoil of war which can be furthere backed by Othello's own alphoods of Stating ' (won her ' and ' my sweet warrior ' which Desdemona shales 1 loved him for the hardships he has faced, this should how othello and natived Desdemana as on ornament and we thus objectifying her whilst deale many supposed Love , seem's to be presented to the audience as a woman austract by his tales.

Suchespeare fartur creates wong in the velarionship between Desdemona and Othero by having a Clash between Steretypes take place. This becomes monic because at the very beginning of the Day by Shakes peare having Desdemona break fushing the stereotype and toboo of intendial managers then break the stereotype of women always obeging the command of a dominant more and finnally by her speaking opening infront of he wice sendie and Date aport her wither topoo marrordo dos to bissent social voius on pacisin and classism. Mory is hen extremy purdent as soon after Dedemona breaks theese stereotypes the isimmedially plo presented by charespeare to fall that a earlier a relationship where the anadler Otherlo'who is also currently unchimised by societies she rectypes to Hen impliment the stereotype of being an unfalkatul on Pesdemona. This therefore become itronic as the audience would expect their somone who is suffering by He implimentation of stereotypes to not apply steretype outo somerce that highlighting the plot as well as chearcy light outo how Their tragic fate fate may have been meditable

Would of the petiagal of duties is also a major theme which girds in the extensive progression or he play 'Officio'. For example by having Emilia betray her mustress be demona unorded to satisfy her husband by Stealing fle humerchect Imparatey Creates many. This who case as Emilia completely believes the safag of her mistress and her duty of being a lodg in service. By Emilia doing so dious prove is able to completly present the power and dominance which may possesed back in vertical society and grobally over women. The low yorks of women and poner present during that time is farther brought out by Iggo who shares 'A good wellow? Hers Iroug is fautume used by succeipeare to raing out one of the final tragadres in the play 1 Desdemonas death' is Othellos betagas of hasbandly daties. This can be said because by Othello smothering Dedemona he imediating victores the male role Of being a protective figure of for his wife as well as his genal (war) duties of being a preferra towards everyone. This betrayou of duties record he rroug created by shake peace can be backed up by a Miric who shares 'Otherw become a slave to his own insecurities).

Shakepeare also creates from them ho Character Iggo and ales his sollloques as a technique ivordor to inform the audience of hu allabolical plan thus cheating a higher state of climax fort by the audience as they now have a much wider very of the plot and what events are experted to happen in the plays progress--ron which Herefore becomes on extremily ironic literary technique for Shabespeare te we as soliloques wally operage the climattic state of a play ration from moveage as the audience in Ofrello now teels a sense of helplessness, guilt and suspense.

furthurmore by Shahespeare presenting the Antogonish Togo in the play to not have any specific motive and oalome in mind, such as how a critic state 'A motiveliess melicuity, conilist pained with an extremy auclimatic earling of mass dear and the Autoponess surviving Irong is created as at the end of he plug by holsenabut deal hyberg accerved, Therefore in conclusion despite the play resulting in the death Of the pare, Innocent and quinte chales and especie pres--euls to the audirace that sometimes out cannot be torned and ranfoled despite being metiveless.

Mid Level 4

This answer to Question 10 is much less successful than the previous script. Though it makes a genuine attempt at the question, the candidate clearly does not have a sifficient understanding of irony, or an awareness of the various types used by Shakespeare: some fair points are made on verbal irony but there is little sense of dramatic irony, a key feature of the play. The writing is mostly accurate, though there are some slips in expression. The candidate strives to contextualise and explore alternative interpretations, but the materials cited are not always relevant to the question. Ultimately, these shortcomings served to suppress the achievement, and the score is confined to the top end of Level 2.

Shorespeare's tragedy "Othello" aescribes the story of a brock-who black woor that who fell in love with a young wents was venician. Sharespeare one of the most powerful techniques omplayed by shakespeare, in the novel, is irony. In many parts of the tragedy there are tronic parts that the audience The audience is presented with many ironic facts throughout the novel.

From the very beginning, Othello is presented by Iago and loaderigo by through the use of insulting words and phrases. Iago calls him "thick-lips" and a black war" whereas loaderigo alls him "a barbarian". It is ironic how in the beginning, these insults seem to not affect to othello's perception of his own self. But, later on, when he starts losing control, one factor that contributed to biss semptete his complete loss of mimal is the words used against him. As a bloor who lives in Vehice and is a general in the venecian army, he has a high social status but in many peoples eyes his is an outsider and not one of them. Our imag Sharespeare's times, be considered from someone Othello to be seen as a dangerous and fustful villain-by some people Due to his place of birth he is still perceived as an outsider So, this place in the army comes in contrary to his outsider & stereotype Aster Otherlo tosos control J+ 15 cloor that him believing those Insults ted contributed to his loss or mind in the end. He feels inferior and outsider despite his social status, Even if he is included in the cycles in benico.

In addition, Shakespeake was writing in Renoussance which was a cultural movement, inspired by the Classical Arts that took place in Europe between the Juth and the 17th contury. This movement challenged old traditions and allebrated reason. Shall speak was Influenced by the Renaissance when writing othello, Firstly, he challenged traditional values by contraging portrating othello, a su mour, ou who was an ethnic minority as a noble and civilised hero. So, it's Ironic when Othello, in the end, becomes violent and dangerow just like the Stereotypes would describe him, leading to their confirmation. Also, Sharespeare's emphasizes on the & importance of reason the Moor wants "occular proof for Desdemond's infidelity woreover, it is constant throughout the play, Igop's perception of women of inferior In Elizabethean England, women were though to be inferior to men by some nosen lite Ingo. The Also, women had few legal rights and their like choices were dictared by their fathers and their husbands. However, Shallspeare created strong female characters in Emilia and Desdemona who drackerages the social order even IF the cannot overthrow it Iago confirms the stereotype or women being Inferior when he characterises Desdemona as a "Super Subtle Venetian". He also, talks roughly by in a rude manner to his wike, Emilia; wherein he says "It is a common thing to have a foolish wrfe! So, It is awar Ironic when someone as clever as Iago Hours tous be so believes in this stereotype prepare A femmist critic would point out the unfairness Women. That men rule over them when they were physically stronger again, the ironic thing IS that even if women don't have the physical power to make a change, but they use their mimal and most of the times having better results.

Othello, as a tragic hero, has the a foutal Flaw, his being bealousy. So, when he few inlove with postermona and His marriage with pesdemona, matroleowher which was seen as something unnoutural, and scandalous and hature, erring from itself", wh with in combination with the insults by others lead to his parssed judgement &, it is ironic how bestermong fell in love with him the same way otherla was poissoned by Iago; through the far. Lastly, Othello says in Act 2 to the Duke that his judgement and performance as a general would not be affected by perdemona's presence which is ironic. This is because in the end this is what happens so the his statement fove shadows what it's about to happens is a powerful aevice used in the plan It created different effects on the audience with the main one being the fact it koups the play intresting, * Desdemona fell inlove with him through his stories as a soldier. What he's been through, as a slave and as a worrior "fasinated her (as she points out in her first appearance inthe play)

Level 2

Question 11

TOP GIRLS

Churchill's play attracted a fairly small entry, but most candidates showed engagement with the text and the issues arising from it, with a strong appreciation of the writer's purposes and stagecraft. Understanding of the context of the 1980s and Margaret Thatcher was the rule; the play's manipulation of gender stereotypes was addressed; and a genuinely complex mixture of disapprobation and sympathy emerged for Marlene. Some candidates for Question 11 focused, perfectly reasonably, on self-deception, others on a socio-economic system which lauds itself for liberating women while denying them central aspects of their femininity. While some rather naïve Question 12answers saw the 1980s as a distant historical period which we've now outgrown and rectified, the majority saw the themes of the cost of success and the tension between professional achievement and human identity as being still all too pertinent today.

Question 15

DEATH OF A SALESMAN

Context is usually strong in responses to Miller. Here, a knowledge of the importance of capitalism, consumerism, urbanisation and the American Dream was virtually universal. Change pervades the play and was addressed from the looming buildings of the initial stage directions through to Linda's enigmatic 'We're free' at the end. The main focus was Willy and his inability/refusal to accept change, be it technological (the tape recorder), commercial (the disappearance of patrician and human values from the company), or familial (Biff growing up). Elsewhere there were interesting discussions of lack of change in other characters - in Happy, who seemed, for some, doomed to the same dreams and destinations as his father, and Linda, whose dogged pursuit of family harmony does not, in the opinion of many, allow her to react sufficiently to Willy's crisis.

In Question 16, the word 'nation' was as important as the word 'man', and was a discriminator. The higher scoring candidates were served well by their contextual knowledge. Willy's fetishes of likeability, personal attractiveness and sporting prowess were seen by many as typical of a national outlook and a national narrowness. Consumer goods (fridges, cars), financial credit and planned obsolescence were cited as evidence that Willy is only one of millions controlled by an economic system he cannot escape or resist because of societal expectations. Many noticed the irony that perhaps the two most successful people in the play, Ben and Bernard, achieved their success in ways that Willy either fears or despises as being not in harmony with the American way. Irony was seen too in Biff finding his greatest happiness in another American way - physical labour in the great outdoors - that is all but dead and gone.

In both questions Miller's stagecraft was appreciated. The flexibility of time and location in the enclosed space was detailed, and there were a number of interesting discussions of Miller's assertion that there are no flashbacks in the play, that everything has become coeval in Willy's mind.

This answer to Question 15 drifts in and out of relevance to the question. The contextual support to this answer is negligible, and the candidate has no real grasp of alternative interpretations. Despite occasional glimpses of Level 3 qualities, this brief answer best fits the descriptors for Level 2 achievement.

In Death of a Salesman by Arthur Miller Change is presented in manny ways such as the scenery, growth, and expectations and chances of being successful. Through the stage directions the audience sees the changes around the house. The sound of the flure links to nature and Willy's father while it tells "of grass and trees trees and the horizon" (Act i). Flute are then introduced to "tomering, angular shapes " behind and around the house Laman's house and "Only the blue light of the sky falls upon the house". "We see a solid vault of appartment houses around the small, fragile sening home "" An air of the dream clings to the place" (Act 1). An air of the dream" the audience won't know at first what "dream" could represent, Instead, they may imagine the feeling of being sleepy or in a cosy dream slinging to the air around the house. While "the dream" actually represents the American Dream throughout the play. The characters Bill and Happy had more chances of being Successful when they were seniors in high school, only that now as adults Biff has wasted his apportunity to become successful in life when his position was being athletic which he graduated and continued when he graduated Throughout his adulthood Piff has worked on a farm and would continue if willy didn't pressure him about being a salesman, Piff has done other jobs on convenience stores and himilar but always stole from his the employees, would not last long in a job and eventually whent to jail. On the contrary, tlappy sommanaged to stay in have a stable job in a convenience store as the assistant's assistant and pretends to be the assistant's buyer to make Willy proud. Happy is soid to be compared to Biff can be said to be more 'successful' and following the American Dream. In the requiem thappy exclaims "the had a good dream. It's the only dream you can have" "I'm gonna win for him", here thappy shill didn't come to the reality of the Artile effort the American Dream offers and is willing to follow willy's footsteps on only to come to the same end as

The changes in being successful and in sarning money for your family are quite severe. In the past, Willy's father so hand crafted and sold flures where he whent and Willy was set on the carrier of a salesman. The similarity between these father and son is they gained their living however they could Willy believes that the re-only real way to success is through hard work and follows Ben's as inspiration to wealth and success. When the memory of Ben often shows up visiting the house and the family, Willy pushes and pleads Ben to show his tids his way to success—the only way to success.

"I want them to know the kind of stock they spring from." The way Miller uses "stock they spring from." could relate to the flures his father made money with or wanting to prepare his boys to be successful in the floure with a good carreer in the business world and see them flourish like "spring" as he wants the percieues them to, on to be able to leave something he created behind as his legacy for Willy, his kids were his legacy but disappointed them became disappointed when they didn't flourish as he wanted because his to awar parenting and not seeing the transition of boys to mean because he was too solemly focused on being earupleting. American Dream.

High Level 2

Question 17

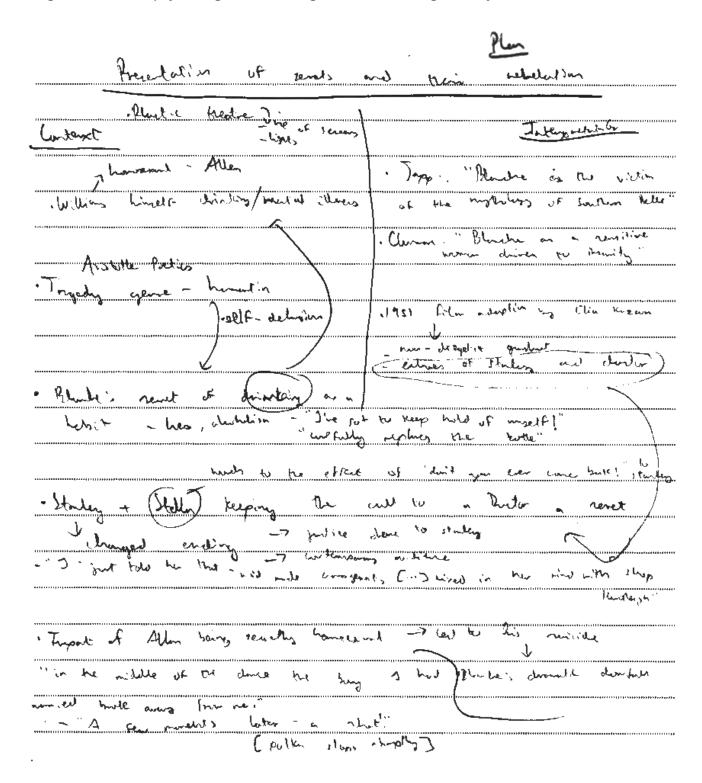

A STREETCAR NAMED DESIRE

Question 17, on secrets and their revelation, attracted the majority of responses and were treated with circumspection and often a measure of subtlety. The number of candidates who reached for their off-the-peg Blanche essay was mercifully low: most crafted their (often compendious) knowledge of the character to the demands of the question. There were focused discussions of how, through stagecraft, Williams controls the flow of information to reveal secrets: hints through gesture, lights, music, sound effects; partial revelation in dialogue; full disclosure in confrontation. Blanche has, or tries to have, so many secrets that candidates were never at a loss for material, but almost all spread their net across other characters too, though not always with the same clarity of focus. Those who pointed out that in a way Stella will have to bury the knowledge that Blanche was telling the truth about the rape in order to survive showed a creditworthy sensitivity.

In Question 18, quality varied widely – just as it did in the other technique-focused questions elsewhere on the paper (Question 6, Question 10). Those who knew the text well dealt very capably with Williams' use of music; those with less in-depth knowledge of the play tended to work chronologically through the play, making reference to each use of music as it arose. The obvious problem with this approach is that so many of the sounds are reprised: answers taking this linear route often ended up repeating themselves and ultimately lost their way or more often ran out of time. The play is very noisy, but all candidates distinguished the dominant motifs of Varsouviana and blue piano, the one playing to a dead past, the other to a vigorous and rather threatening present. The interventions of the clarinet and the hot trumpet were also widely recognised as signalling sensuality, vitality and danger. Other auditory effects - cat, locomotive, jungle, silence - when used in relation to the music were relevant.

In both questions, the wealth of close reference in the majority of responses was noteworthy and impressive - candidates clearly find the play memorable. Contextual factors - gender issues, the decay of the Old South, the author's own life - were usually firmly linked to the text, and there were very few who failed to consider interpretations whether professional or personal.

A delightful answer to Question 17. The writing is always fluent and sometimes elegant; textual analysis is unerringly relevant, and enriched by contextual support and alternative interpretations (though some of the psychological theorising is less convincing). It fell just short of full marks.

In 'A Streeter Remed Penne' Termeruse William presents revets and their revelations the (end to) as course of Blowle's Jelmi'm and hunutia. However, sevets one also kept from Blunche herrelf leading to her invertable down Full. The deud Austrus of Blanche Allen, was honorement in revet. This mirrors the Williams Milliams Rinself who was also homosesund however did not bution it a resset in the rome many which led to many of his finited relationships, as a rimitarity to Blanche, Migg Blanche tells Mitch about her emperience with then, "in the middle of the June the kay I had movied broke avery from me, followed by her rugily "A flow moments later a shut! "This alludy to Allen's milite and also allow led to Blanche's developing prominuity as who felt the new to companiate for the rejection whe felt upon finding out that Allen was the Coursesand. This entire verelation led to We Williams' was of developing a complex and compelling story to his hunarters, emphasized my the idea that Frendin and Jungian populwamolytical works were being read by writers at the time during the Us, especially when unposing throater to prime troyeday) in trugedies befrehind. July trums ten be demonstrated in William' use of the plustic benta yeare, ming rounds, lights, revens and stage directions to present the hostic world from Blanki's perspective. Every time be neveletion of Allow's honoresuntity is berought up It leads to Blanche (lains) Die non-diegetic granshot, with stage directors raying that 'Ethe Polky numic styps absorptly]. Then, the degree of transce that ruch a recret coursed to Blanche is revealed to the andience, in such a way that they would the apprisonce the events emfold from Blanke's point of view. Trupely gence Comentius are also merent in relation to Blunche and the revet, the keeps, Aristotle's Poetins would lead (trooped) the protogonist in the (plung 1) plung to thereby) a humentia, and in Blushe's case it's her nelf-delicar. This is demonstrated through her disking all will nurying " I've got to beep lold of myself!" The stage direction and to this idea, describing Blushe to "curofully replace the buttle", which demonstrates how the when to keep her drinking hobsits a reboot, as well as her inability to central lenself, employed by the enclamation mark and effort which on cutur during her would * and development peform. However, we am also interpret that another of Blanche: flows is lying as she attempts to mintain her renets. When affect a drink, who muys "I never bouch the stuff", postanging the andience be entent to where her nell-telision and lock of control bras led her Theutre critic Herold Chamma describes Blushe as a "remitive home disen to Irraity". Hen remitivities are justinged not only in her week mental state but also her consent bases and be entent of her madners is demonstrated in the 1951 film adaption of the play by Elin Kugens. Most notably the with Stanley's rape bedy be but strew is coming her relf- delunium, Hella from her, "I M-just told her that - will make arrangements [...] aired in her mind with Slap Huntleigh ". We can interpret that Blumbe antificially constructed the idea of a 'Shap Hutleigh' is her mind, cupiting to be smed from the hush realities of the real world, flowerer, another interpretation is that one this recet is broken, blunche begin being hon-diegotic echoes in the film adaptation upon realizing that Huntleigh was Mille never three to meet her. There exhibes of Starley's voice Willes and the doctor's complusive an Blanke is herming disuttended from socility as a result of the severation of the rever kept from her. What was previous men-diegetic distorted munic, tune into a melody upon Blanche's deliverity of the line, "Wholever you are - I have always depended on the kindness of strongers". This, another interpretation would be that Blanke is at this point 1 relaining to, be some way as her prostring for the her paper Illes lump was symbolic of her confint and control, as a nesult of the reveletion behind Itelli's Blumbre attempts to also ding in to the iden of herelf as a 'Jouthern Belle' - a young upper class girl in the bouth with good numers. Critic Tapp attriprets this as "Blanke ; the within of the mythology of "Southern Belle", implying that ruch all idens no longer existed and were fititions. Having the undergue the revolution of neeting the doctor, Blanche becomes remitatived as the doctor's good memor adhered to I what the so derived. This was demustrated in the film adaptation through the use of appliciting non-diegetic music that followed Blance's 'reserve'. We can also interpret that this breaks every from conventional truedy gense, Ille due to Blinde not herry directly parished in the end The revelotion of Etaller's remet about inditationalizing Blanche also comes her guilt , shown by the reportition of "Blanche! Blands, Blande! To while Blandse's Lawford was inevitable, her zister nevertleles feets venouse regulating much a reviet. This is emphasized in the film adaptation, where Italia rungs would to the Italey not present in the play. Therefore as a result of the revet, a wortempormy andience would have found greater retistruction knowing trut fift stenlar was punished by Itella lening him, in contrast Renche's downed and Houley and Houley continuing than very of life. Sent, and them revolution are presented as causes of Blocks's Miller relf-Jelenian, trying into Mallithe trayedy yours comentions and as (homestin) he having a homestin. Allai. minde and homosexuling as a remet and as justification For her Estal Plans and the senset Stalla Keys # intend, whe drives ones in a wallow car and in sufety.

High Level 5

Question 18

This, like many other answers to Question 18, was a little briefer than one would prefer. However, the nature of the question - on the dramatic function of music in the play - required candidates to spend quite a bit of time looking through the text's stage directions for instances of Williams' thinking on this matter. This answer is around 3 pages long, but it reveals a very acute mind at work, being dense with relevant detail, insightful analysis, and sensible contextualisation. It sits on the borderline of Levels 4 and 5.

'A Streetcax Named Desire by Tennesse williams 2 ioduC shorel Blanche o to prote suche who moves to New Orleans to live with her sister and oxother - in - law. It is set in 1940's New Orleans Shortly after the Second World war. While reffered Williams Winself has fo to his writing as "lyric" he furthers this musical sense through his pacedronny mosic. At the west start of the play we are introduced to the very first musical motifin the play which is the Blue Piano that letpresses the spirit of the life which goes on here inis piano records an involgnout the play and stands to represent the bud and lively way of the in the vay-bonamion as critics have alleg it - allen Orleans. It is soil to be played by me "infatuated fluency of brown fugers wis suous us now enquited one can become usin the music, to the point where you do not even need to four facus in order to play Next we see that the Varaniana is also a key musical element in this play. This is associated WHO Bianchels late husband Alan Alan was a homosexual and due to the penalisation and marginalisation we may have felt from society, as well as the sname he had to bear, he killed himself. As said by Podricia Han, " Blanche's "discovery of hex young his band's sexuality perhaps reflects the kind of response williams himself may have encountered. This sough is not only played everytime she feels quilty about Alan, but It is also played an increasing number of times as the play progresses. This illustrates ese decent into maddness. The Polka, as described by Michael Hoopey becomes more and more insistent as of Blanche's past moves closer and closer to her present refuge . The first time it is heard is at the end of Scene when stanley asks Blanche 1 but the music itself is very in the distance" tlowever, it louder when she speatalks widew At being a Mitch about

The beginning of scene 9 where Blanche is hunched up alone in her robe , The polka is extremely fast, and even feverish.

'Paper Doll' which Branche sings helps to bring out how music acts as a " permeable membrane as some have said between reality and Blanchel's fautasy. There lyrics very explicitly bring this comparison out such as in the lines, ail mouldnt be mare-believe if you believed in me, and his line is repeated on ordition to end thoughout this however, other charachters do have sounds associated with them as noted by P. Hern For example Stanley, "is associated with the powerful note of a locomotive engine.

In concusion we see that in me words of M. Flooper, me, "visual projection of Blanche's inner life is comprehented by me music. williams ouse uses music as a way to draw the audiences in, so they can live Blanchels afq

Level 4/5

Here is another rather brief answer to Question 18, but this one covers much less ground than the previous script. It mentions a few of the more important musical effects in the play, but struggles to analyse them deeply, or to contextualise them. The score was placed in the upper reaches of Level

,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,	Neu	Oz	lean s	is the	e cit	y , uhich ere, its
A .						ditterent
				-		the USA
Rusic		-
		-		*		city, which itterent classe
	In t	he 4	Street	ear no	amed	desiren
the	nu sic	Pla	4) goe.	trough	the	all play,	never s	strats	wit	h A	corres	all ponoling
21 5/10	evoked	Ву	the	husic	of Ne	o vo entertai

corner, or a few doors down the street, from a tinny piano being played with the infatuated fluency of brown fingers. This "blue piano" expresses the spirit of life which goes on here As Williams said music expressed the spirit of lite. As lite never stops, the music continues to play, it could become lowder, it the actions is in the box eing point or quiter It when everything is peacetul. In fact, the music in the " street cour Named desire" describes emotions and teeting of people, especially, Blamene Trough the music we can understand whatis going on in Blanchers mind The most unplasent music for Blanche was polka and when it plaied we understood that the situation is autul. This Polka hap a big influence on Blanche as it is conecied with a pain, which ab & about which she isn't strong enough to forget. Her lovely young his band, perhaps, the most valuable person for her kived himself. And all what she heard in this distant revolver shot moment was a shoot and anoying motif of polka. Her life inc really motif of polka. Her life inc really moreover changed after it and vI would say that It changed Blounche. Fizstly, poeka appeared in the Hist dialogue between Blanche and Stanley Stanley: , You were married once, weren't you "?

I The music of the polka rises up, taint in the distance I Blanche: "The Bay- the Bay died.
I She sinks back down I I'm at atraid 9'm-going to be sick
L Her head faus on her arms?
With Together with the music of polka rises up, the contlict between Blanche and Stanley is growing.
In the scene when Stanley raped
Blanche, she also heared this music.
And when the doctor took her to a madhouse. Polka hos asos; ations with Stanley, who was a polak.
It seems that this music has

			,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,		+ nelpe	ed to	P.C.
linkes	with	death) .	and	it	led	Beanen oral Mex		Joman:				pars
	lo.	s muez	40),	111111999555-44441111111555
	! The po	ma to	me -	t ades	in)
		Jym Bo
7	The pe	ay e	finist	red	wi	th
L 7	he eux	vrious	SOBBi	nφ	the s	ensu	al fade	awa	y uude	r the	e su	vellin	y n	msic
of the	, blue	piano"	and	the	nut	ered	trumper
Blanc	ne goe	s awa	y	but	the	114e
In 1	Jew C	releans	conti	wieg.		187744411111111111111111111111111111111
In	my	rleans opinior	the the	· exp	lains	62	1e ich goe
me	ntion	people,	uho	de)es n't
		fit in			eture)
Some	etimes	it Brow	ies	them	aı	nol
t	reiz d	255129

Question 19

WAITING FOR GODOT

As usual, the play attracted a band of enthusiastic and generally well-informed devotees. Setting and props (the focus of Question 19) were discussed with a good sense of generic dramatic impact the significance of the tree and its ambivalent leafing, the biblical overtones of the mound, the boots and hat releasing both tragic and comic elements in the play, the carrot signalling the poverty of their existence. Pozzo and Lucky were also considered, though the interpretation of the rope as indicating the capitalist yoke enslaving the proletariat perhaps needed more substantiation.

A still smaller number wrote about memory and forgetting in answer to Question 20, with pertinent references to the intellectual disparity between the two principals, the creation of pathos in the recollection of the trip to Paris, the blurred memory of yesterday when Pozzo and Lucky reappear.

Contextual comment was quite rich, with relevant discussion of the Absurd, Chaplin and Laurel and Hardy, and Beckett's own experience during WWII. Existentialism was not always integrated, nor were the frequent allusions to Camus.

This answer to Question 19 is brief, but what is presented is relevant and purposeful. It selects a modest range of symbolic details, analyses them effectively, but is rather thin in terms of contextual support for the arguments advanced. A mid-Level 3 score was awarded.

in the play 'waiting for Godot', Samuel a sense of vagueney and W 9 COW WATER alive by doing certain actions that mure hopeless. They also inspire symbols In the case of Pozzo, his watch signifier his only strength to been survive in this Sisuphean world. when vladimi that once Pozzo loses it het followed by his loss of peatin 2 pur. When he wees 1+ and they begin to listen for a tick Vladimir believes they can hear the heart. When Estragonsay

"Perhaps it has stopped-"it could imply that Pozzo new lost mone than a watch, as his watch is the only thing keeping ent priming internation the fact that he is trapped intide the never-ending loop of time. Similarly, othercharactory beckett uses the proper such as the hat and boots, to suggest the human need for performing mundane daily tarks to distroct themselves from the inevitableit of death the had trick that Beckett creates between Vladimiri hat and Estragons hat is illustrative of the schopenhaueri idea that if a person to to stop must me memain preoccupied in order to memain alive, and that perhaps if one were to tos stop duing even the must mundane things-suchay Estragon " urrying to take off his boot repeatedlyit would result in that person beaming tostured by thoughts about death the insignificance of their liver and death.

Prior to the first act, in Act one, Beckett describes the setting of the play in an untraditional non-traditional manner - " A country road. A tree . Evening This indeed appeared an "elusive" and Obscure to ne to the play, almost like claustrophobic. substally Perhaps like most objects in 'Wouting for Godot, the tree symbolises aspecific Exp idea, however vague it vaguely it is described - "It must be dead " sur and sur of the weeping " there are the use of patheticfallacy conveys that the tree is more than an object as it starts to symbolise that the idea of freedom through death to Vladimir and Estragon - " Ytactimite - Estragon: what about hanging ourselver?"the prospect of hanging only and freedom are never possible however Becketruses the 8et to $ suggest how the characters are always tempted but never receive what they truly want.

To conclude, the we of props and set In the play (Waiting for Godot' by Samuel Beckett can be interpreted as both another means that through which the characters are tonmented with the possibility of freedom, but at the same time they have symbolic meanings to each of the characters and the serve as aping mechanisms in a new ending loop of time a prison of time.

mid-Level 3

Paper Summary

Based on performance on this paper, future candidates are offered the following advice:

- Use a range of literary terminology to identify ways in which writers create meaning; discuss the effect of these techniques on the reader or audience.
- Remember that the texts you are studying are plays: demonstrate your knowledge of theatrical terminology and refer where possible and relevant to specific productions.
- Don't just copy out lots of contextual material or quotes from critics or reviewers or directors; make judicious selections from such sources to support what you are saying about the play, and tailor it to the precise terms of the question.
- Read the exact wording of the question carefully and answer this question, rather than one you practised before the exam.
- Enjoy your writing and share your enthusiasm with the examiner.

Grade Boundaries

Grade boundaries for this, and all other papers, can be found on the website on this link:

http://www.edexcel.com/iwantto/Pages/grade-boundaries.aspx