Qualification Accredited

AS LEVEL

Examiners' report

FILM STUDIES

H010 For first teaching in 2017

H010/01 Summer 2019 series

Version 1

Contents

Introduction	3
Paper 1 series overview	4
Section A overview	5
Question 1	5
Question 2	6
Question 3	8
Question 4	9
Section B overview	10
Question 5	10
Question 6	12
Section C overview	13
Question 7	13
Question 8	13
Copyright information	15

Would you prefer a Word version?

Did you know that you can save this pdf as a Word file using Acrobat Professional? Simply click on File > Save As Other... and select Microsoft Word

(If you have opened this PDF in your browser you will need to save it first. Simply right click anywhere on the page and select Save as... to save the PDF. Then open the PDF in Acrobat Professional.)

If you do not have access to Acrobat Professional there are a number of free applications available that will also convert Word to PDF (search for pdf to word converter).

We value your feedback

We'd like to know your view on the resources we produce. By clicking on the icon above you will help us to ensure that our resources work for you.

Introduction

Our examiners' reports are produced to offer constructive feedback on candidates' performance in the examinations. They provide useful guidance for future candidates. The reports will include a general commentary on candidates' performance, identify technical aspects examined in the questions and highlight good performance and where performance could be improved. The reports will also explain aspects which caused difficulty and why the difficulties arose, whether through a lack of knowledge, poor examination technique, or any other identifiable and explainable reason.

Where overall performance on a question/question part was considered good, with no particular areas to highlight, these questions have not been included in the report. A full copy of the exam paper can be downloaded from OCR.

Paper 1 series overview

This was the second examination of the new AS Level and there were marked improvements in the overall quality of the responses candidates were able to offer. The benefit of the previous live paper and the feedback to centres provided via last year's examiners' report was clearly evident. There were less examples of candidates unable to complete their responses fully, indicating an improvement in addressing time management demands. A substantial number of candidates chose their own route through the completion of the paper, with some doing the lower mark Section A questions last.

Overall, across all three sections of the examination, there was firm evidence of centres and candidates adapting to the requirements of the new specification and its assessment strategy.

In terms of further driving up standards, all centres are strongly advised to make sure that all relevant aspects of film language are comprehensively worked through in relation to all films studied to ensure candidates are ready for whatever the examination demands. Candidates need a set of examples from their chosen films which they can deploy to suit the specific question focus. The ability of candidates to be able to support points and arguments with textual evidence is imperative across all of the sections of the examination.

Section A overview

Overall, the quality of responses in Section A was improved from last year's examination, with much greater evidence of analysis of chosen sequences and less reliance on descriptive writing in candidate responses.

To access the highest level in Q1 and Q2 candidates must balance technical explanation of chosen sequences using accurate terminology with the time available. Accordingly, responses must be concise and very precisely targeted. This is a skill which needs to be developed and should feature as a recurring feature of successful teaching and learning plans.

In general, Q3 was answered effectively by the majority of candidates, who showed the ability to express their knowledge and understanding of the selected films.

Question 1

You should have studied one US film from the 1930–1960 list and one US film from the 1961–1990 list below. Questions 1–4 require you to write about the US films you have studied.

1930–1960	1961–1990
Citizen Kane (1941). Directed by Orson Welles. USA	2001: A Space Odyssey (1968). Directed by Stanley Kubrick. USA
Singin' in the Rain (1952). Directed by Gene Kelly/Stanley Donen. USA	Raging Bull (1980). Directed by Martin Scorsese. USA
Stagecoach (1939). Directed by John Ford. USA	E.T. (1982). Directed by Steven Spielberg. USA
Vertigo (1958). Directed by Alfred Hitchcock. USA	Do the Right Thing (1989). Directed by Spike Lee. USA
Double Indemnity (1944). Directed by Billy Wilder. USA	The Conversation (1974). Directed by Francis Ford Coppola. USA
All that Heaven Allows (1955). Directed by Douglas Sirk. USA	West Side Story (1961). Directed by Jerome Robbins/Robert Wise. USA

1 With reference to a sequence from one film from 1961–90 which you have studied, explain how cinematography has been used to create meaning for the spectator. [5]

This question requires candidates to undertake semiotic analysis of a chosen sequence by identifying elements from the sequence and being able to apply subject specific terminology and then explain the potential connotations for spectators. To score marks in the highest level, this is precisely what is required. Candidates who achieved marks in level 2 did so because one of the above elements wasn't as fully present as it might have been.

Question 2

With reference to a sequence from one film from 1930–60 which you have studied, explain how mise-en-scène has been used to create meaning for the spectator. [5]

All of the comments regarding Q1 above also apply here. Additionally, it should be noted that candidates were expected to be able to discuss precise elements of mise-en-scene (e.g. costume, location) and analyse the potential meanings of these. There were a sizeable number of candidates who struggled to be able to discuss specific elements of mise-en-scene explicitly.

Exemplar 1

Throughout ET, it was very rare to see ET'S face making his come ocross as mysterious and the audience constantly wanting more and feeling intreguid. The only times he is doing something magical lout of he is dling something magical out or the ordinary.
speilberg uses cinematography here to create suspence and mystery to ET whilst also making him appear like a powerful and mysterious Creature. Also known as God.
in ET, directed by Steven Spielberg in 1981, Spielberg used cinematography to make the audience relate ET to God.
There are a few events such as ET ising from the dead bosts there is pa in this scene ET walks out the back of the doors to the van spielberg places the camera lower to the ground so we, the spectator are looking up at ET making him appear powerful and when this is pared with the light shining behind him it makes ET looks magical; This is powerful and when this is pared with the light shining behind him it makes ET look magical. This is done so the eudience thrown unconsidily relate ET to & God.
1 0

_	In Verion directed by Alfred Hitchronk,
,	in 1958, mise-en-scene has been _	used to reveal more about the _	Characters and future plot points.
	· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·
	Modeline is often surrounded by the Modeline is often surrounded by the colour red which in this film represents romance and possion along with danger. Hitchcock has done to this for the audience to assume that Scotty will fall in love with Madeline but its a warning too that she is dangerous.
1	Another thing to notice is how the colour green is also used. This too is often symanding her or directly on her like her clather for example. In vertigo green respondes death once again.
	indicating that Madehine is dangerous and she will die or course the death of another
_
_	Hitchcock tries to make Madeline _	appear as ghost like as possible. To (do this Madebine is often vent pale
_	or for away for the camera
_	do this Madebine is often very pale or for away for the comera It Often appears that Madeline is diding rather than walking due to her feet frequently being Covered (Hiding rather than walking due to
-	her feet frequently being covered

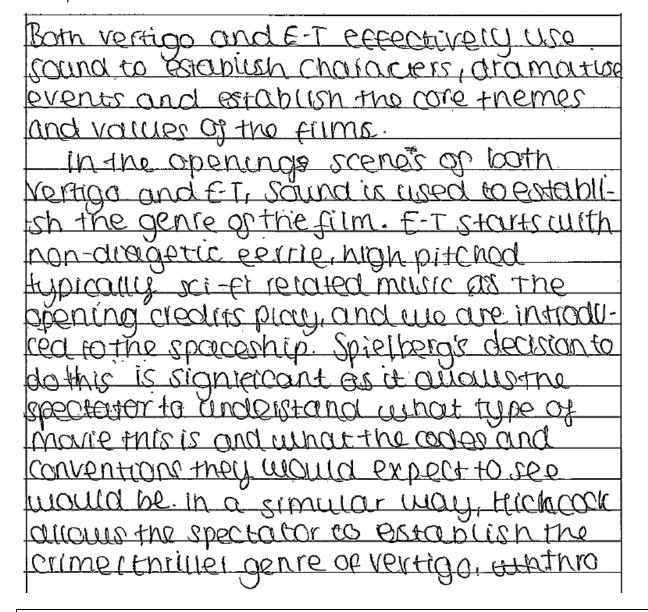

Q1 and Q2 – the candidate has fully demonstrated their understanding of the questions and the films studied. The responses are concise but well-developed and demonstrate technical knowledge with an understanding of how meaning can be made. Making effective points concisely is a key element of good practice for both of these questions.

Question 3

3* Compare how sound has been used to convey messages and values in the two films you have studied. You must refer to examples from one film in the 1930–60 list and examples from one film in the 1961–90 list in your answer.

The majority of candidates were able to use relevant examples from their chosen films to analyse elements of sound proficiently. Candidates who scored marks in the upper levels did so through being able to clearly discuss examples from the films and use terminology accurately and frequently. Where candidates achieved marks in the lower levels this was because they were not able to offer clear examples from the films and / or there was a lack of accurate use of specific terminology.

Exemplar 2

Q3 - The candidate offers a very well-structured response which constantly draws on examples from the films studied and regularly deploys a high level of knowledge and understanding of relevant aspects of film language. As well as this knowledge and understanding, the response offers a convincing comparison of the use of film language in the two films, demonstrating high level academic writing skills at this assessment level.

Question 4

4* Compare how editing contributes to the aesthetics of the two films you have studied. You must refer to examples from one film in the 1930–60 list and examples from one film in the 1961–90 list in your answer.
[25]

This question required a focused consideration of editing and its impact on aesthetics – both of which can be challenging areas for candidates. Fundamental qualities of higher level responses were the explicit discussion of editing techniques / styles (such as montage editing, discussions of the applications of the Kuleshov effect) together with an understanding of film aesthetics (the way a film's stylistic elements are constructed and how that may trigger some kind of response in the spectator). The choices made in the editing of any film will go a very long way to guiding the response of any spectator to the characters and the narrative. So, discussions of any aspect of editing, e.g. transitions, sequencing of shots, the amount of on-screen time for some characters over others all lend themselves to discussions of aesthetics.

Exemplar 3

Edding is used in both IT and Vertigos title sequences. In ET there is a block harbyround coupled with purple coredits. The purple Cends ofself to see of theme and mediately sets up the gapire of the film for the first Ave nutures there is not specken which is odd for a children's Film. Also un cere theme is played whilst the openley credits role. In vostigo, the openling greates starting by shopping a moment's lips. This lived tink to the romeinte aspect of the film Then the he andiena are shown eyes. They laste from side to side us though beens wilded, a kell them I in the film (vorsewison). Then the my danset the good of one gorials. They have no solid shape, perhaps litting to the displity of all on the characters.
) J

Q4 - The candidate offers a detailed response to a question area which students have often found challenging. The candidate demonstrates very good understanding (at AS level) of the contribution editing makes to aesthetics and is able to offer a response which constantly stays 'on-task' and gives well-chosen examples, effectively supported by good knowledge and understanding of film language.

Section B overview

The majority of candidates answered Q5 rather than Q6. Candidates showed good knowledge and understanding of their chosen films. Not all candidates were able to fully address the specific requirements of the question in their responses.

Question 5

You should have studied one of the themes in the table below. For your chosen theme, you should have studied one film from the US Independent list and one film from the Non-US English Language list. Questions 5–6 require you to write about the two films you have studied.

Theme	US Independent	Non-US English Language
Family and Home	Moonrise Kingdom (2012). Directed by Wes Anderson. USA	Room (2015). Directed by Lenny Abrahamson. Canada/Ireland
	The Tree of Life (2011). Directed by Terrance Malick. USA	Animal Kingdom (2010). Directed by David Michôd. Australia
Outsiders	A Girl Walks Home Alone at Night (2014). Directed by Ana Lily Amirpour. USA	The Babadook (2014). Directed by Jennifer Kent. Australia/Canada
	Elephant (2003). Directed by Gus Van Sant. USA	The Piano (1993). Directed by Jane Campion. New Zealand/Australia/ France
Conflict	The Hurt Locker (2008). Directed by Kathryn Bigelow. USA	District 9 (2009). Directed by Neill Blomkamp. South Africa/USA/New Zealand/Canada
	Whiplash (2014). Directed by Damien Chazelle. USA	Mad Max (1979). Directed by George Miller. Australia

EITHER

5* With reference to examples from the two films you have studied from your chosen theme, compare how the films create gender representations that reflect the contexts in which they are made. [35]

As with other questions in this examination, there are two key demands within the question here: candidates needed to be able to discuss gender representation and production contexts. The majority of candidates were able to discuss gender representations with reference to characters in the films studied. Some candidates were hesitant in being able to locate these gender representations in context. The question left open what contexts could be applied, allowing candidates to discuss the contexts that were most suited to the films they had studied. Therefore, for example, social context could have been discussed with regard to Whiplash, political context could have been discussed with regard to District 9, social and cultural contexts could have been discussed with regards to Room, The Babadook or The Piano. When selecting set films for study, as part of their planning for curriculum delivery, centres are strongly advised to plan for and deliver learning opportunities on the different contexts.

Exemplar 4

Q5 - The candidate offers a very confident analysis of gender representation in the films studied. The candidate is able to offer a strong discussion of stereotypical representations of gender which is subsequently complemented by a discussion of counter-stereotypical representation. In doing so, the candidate demonstrates a full understanding of the issue as applied to the films studied.

Question 6

6* With reference to examples from the two films you have studied from your chosen theme, compare how their use of genre conventions may create meaning and response from spectators. [35]

The majority of candidates who attempted this question clearly knew and understood the films studied and how, in general terms, those films can trigger spectator response. In order to address the requirements of the question candidates needed to effectively situate their studied films within a generic context. Where candidates were unable to do this they could not offer full answers to this question which impacted on the marks attained. Candidates must be prepared for all eventualities that the examination can demand with regard to the knowledge and understanding of the films studied in order to be able to provide full responses to the demands of the question.

Section C overview

The overall quality of responses in Section C showed improvement from last year. There is still evidence that candidates seem less prepared for the type of questions they face here. This could be a time management issue – most students attempt this section last – and/or it could be that candidates need to further practice their skills in analysing their selected text.

Question 7

You should have studied one European film from the list below. Questions 7–8 require you to write about the European film you have studied.

European Film
The Lives of Others (2006). Directed by Florian Henckel von Donnersmarck. Germany
Son of Saul (2015). Directed by László Nemes. Hungary
A Prophet (2009). Directed by Jacques Audiard. France/Italy
The Great Beauty (2013). Directed by Paolo Sorrentino. Italy/France
Ida (2013). Directed by Pawel Pawlikowski. Poland/Denmark/France/UK
Let the Right One In (2008). Directed by Thomas Alfredson. Sweden

EITHER

7* Discuss how the poetics – the choice of micro elements to create aesthetic effects – of your chosen European film contribute to the film's representation of a distinctive fictional world. Refer to specific sequences in your answer.
[35]

A minority of candidates attempted this question. Those who did could demonstrate accurate evidence of knowledge and understanding of their chosen film. Given that most candidates attempt this question last, there was a tendency in many responses to skate through elements of the film rather than taking time to analyse specific sequences, as called for in the question. In some cases, this led to an overly descriptive writing style which repressed candidates' potential to score higher marks.

Question 8

8* Discuss how the narrative and representations in the European film you have studied reflect events and issues in the wider world.
[35]

The majority of candidates attempted this question, but as with Q7, a number of candidates struggled to link their discussion of the narrative and representation in their chosen film to events and issues in the wider world. Notable exceptions could be found with some discussions of the ethnic structuration of the prison population in A Prophet and how this can be seen to be reflective of modern France and some ability to forge links between the representation of characters and the East German state in The Lives Of Others to the nature of the totalitarian regime in power in East Germany/ German Democratic Republic at the time that the film was set. Part of the learning experience of studying European Film at AS Level is not just to learn about other, less familiar film styles and production contexts but also to learn about the underpinning social, cultural and political contexts which inform the films on the set list.

Exemplar 5

Q8 - The candidate offers a fluent and cogent response which demonstrates very good knowledge and understanding of the film. The candidate is also very able to make connections to the real world issues demanded by the question by invoking a sense of how the film contributes to a national discussion of Poland's history in World War 2.

Copyright information

This is not applicable to this report.

OCR Resources: the small print

OCR's resources are provided to support the delivery of OCR qualifications, but in no way constitute an endorsed teaching method that is required by OCR. Whilst every effort is made to ensure the accuracy of the content, OCR cannot be held responsible for any errors or omissions within these resources. We update our resources on a regular basis, so please check the OCR website to ensure you have the most up to date version.

This resource may be freely copied and distributed, as long as the OCR logo and this small print remain intact and OCR is acknowledged as the originator of this work.

Our documents are updated over time. Whilst every effort is made to check all documents, there may be contradictions between published support and the specification, therefore please use the information on the latest specification at all times. Where changes are made to specifications these will be indicated within the document, there will be a new version number indicated, and a summary of the changes. If you do notice a discrepancy between the specification and a resource please contact us at: resources.feedback@ocr.org.uk.

Whether you already offer OCR qualifications, are new to OCR, or are considering switching from your current provider/awarding organisation, you can request more information by completing the Expression of Interest form which can be found here: www.ocr.org.uk/expression-of-interest

Please get in touch if you want to discuss the accessibility of resources we offer to support delivery of our qualifications: resources.feedback@ocr.org.uk

Looking for a resource?

There is now a quick and easy search tool to help find free resources for your qualification:

www.ocr.org.uk/i-want-to/find-resources/

www.ocr.org.uk

OCR Customer Support Centre

General qualifications

Telephone 01223 553998 Facsimile 01223 552627

Email general.qualifications@ocr.org.uk

OCR is part of Cambridge Assessment, a department of the University of Cambridge. For staff training purposes and as part of our quality assurance programme your call may be recorded or monitored.

© OCR 2019 Oxford Cambridge and RSA Examinations is a Company Limited by Guarantee. Registered in England. Registered office The Triangle Building, Shaftesbury Road, Cambridge, CB2 8EA. Registered company number 3484466. OCR is an exempt charity.

