JANE AUSTEN'S HOUSE MUSEUM

Jane Austen is one of the most popular novelists that England has ever produced, her books describing English society before the Industrial Revolution.

The house at Chawton is where she spent the last eight years of her life. It is of worldwide importance as the place where she did the majority of her writing, yet it retains the charm of a village home. A 17th century house, it tells the story of Jane and her family. You can still see the tiny table on which she wrote her six major novels.

Jane Austen arrived in Chawton when she was thirty-three years old. Living with her mother and sister, her day consisted of household chores, playing the piano and writing.
