TEXT 1

White Britons make up 88.2% of the population. The Indian population is the largest non-white ethnic group accounting for 1.8% of the population. Black Caribbeans account for 1% of the population. Detailed analysis of ethnic minorities shows how many are now second, third and even fourth generation immigrants. 57% of Black Caribbeans were born in the UK, alongside 55% of Pakistanis, 46% of Bangladeshis and 45% of Indians. Outside major cities, many areas remain predominantly white British.

TEXT 2Archbishop warns of “crisis” in modern childhood

The Archbishop of Canterbury today warned family separations and commercial pressures are causing a crisis in modern childhood. Dr Rowan Williams says a new generation of young parents fail to offer the right example to their children who in turn are becoming “infant adults”. He was supported by a number of academics and teachers who have highlighted the growing incidence of childhood depression warning that poor diet, the rise of video games at the expense of outdoor play and modern education were stifling the natural creativity of many youngsters.

TEXT 3Nation urged to join UK’s first inquiry on childhood

The Children’s Society launches the UK’s first independent national inquiry into childhood today. Research conducted with 6,000 young people for the launch of the inquiry challenges assumptions that today’s youth are only interested in material possessions. The two most commonly mentioned words when asked about a good childhood were family and friends. Young people emphasised terms such as the “importance of being loved and supported” and “being treated with fairness and respect by others”.

Unmarried parents are damaging society, says Conservative Party report

The Breakdown Britain Report published by the Social Justice Policy Group says nearly one in two cohabiting parents split up before their child's fifth birthday, compared to one in 12 married parents. The report put the cost of split families at £20bn a year and suggested that such families cause major social problems.
