Robyn decided to show her recently assembled wardrobe to her neighbour, Julie. Unfortunately, Robyn had not followed the instructions properly when assembling the wardrobe. When Julie opened one of the doors the wardrobe collapsed. Fortunately, Julie suffered only minor injuries, though her new phone costing £500 was smashed as she fell. A few minutes later, Julie was unable to receive a call on her phone offering her work; as a result she could not accept the work and lost the opportunity of earning the £7,000 she would have been paid for it.

Assume that Robyn owed a duty of care to Julie.

- (b) Evaluate whether Robyn breached her duty of care to Julie, and if so what remedies may be available.

Mohan, a famous footballer, has recently read on social media that Roxy, an ex-girlfriend, has reported him to the police for selling illegal drugs when he was younger. Roxy later appears on national television and refuses to withdraw the allegation even though the police have now discovered the allegation to be false. As a result Mohan loses a £12,000 contract to advertise football boots.

Tural runs a small hotel and is annoyed at the reviews that have been posted on a famous UK travel website, saying that the hotel is terrible. Tural decides to take the website to court as it has refused to release the details of the reviewers, who he believes have made comments without even visiting the hotel.
