Introduction

Difficulty Levels

This guide is provided as an aid for checking grade levels of some of the more popular pieces likely to be offered on the most common instruments. Where an instrument is not covered by this list, examiners are advised to have at their disposal copies of recent graded exam syllabuses for easy reference. Many of the graded syllabuses are available by consulting the exam boards' websites. The inclusion of any pieces on the following lists is for grading purposes only. Where a piece exists on the lists of more than one exam board, the higher or highest grade is that which Edexcel will accept for the GCE AS level/A level Music exams.

Difficulty Level codes

E (easy)
S (standard)
MD (more difficult)
H (higher).

The first three of these apply to the 'old' Curriculum 2000 specification.
The second, third and fourth apply to the 'new' GCE 2008 specification.

The final mark achieved by a candidate in both specifications is dependent upon the difficulty of the piece(s) offered.

Performances at E, MD or H level are scaled according to the grids found in the specifications and Instructions for Examiners.

For the 'new' AS level (6MU01), as for the 'old' unit 6701, the standard (S) level of difficulty is Grade 5.

For GCE 2000 (Old Specification) the following will apply:
Grade 4 = E level Grade 5 = S level Grade 6 (and above) MD level

For GCE 2008 (New Specification) the following will apply:
Grade 5 = S level Grade 6 = MD level Grade 7 (and above) H level
(Pieces at Grade 4 or below will not allow candidates to access the highest mark bands: see Specification, p. 22, under 'Difficulty of Pieces').

For the 'new' A2 level (6MU04), as for the 'old' 6704/42 and 6705/52, the standard (S) level of difficulty is Grade 6.

For GCE 2000 (Old Specification) the following will apply:
Grade 5 = E level Grade 6 = S level Grade 7 (and above) MD level

Ensemble and improvised performances

Examiners should compare the technical and musical demands of the part played by the candidate in relation to solo pieces in the Difficulty Level Book.
