SEKCJA 2

2 Przetłumacz na polski następujący tekst.

The view was exquisite with the white ice caps of the Karakoram Mountains towering over Korphe village against the background of the blue sky. But Mortenson wasn't admiring the scenery. He was appalled to see eighty-two children, seventy-eight boys and four girls who had the courage to join them, kneeling on the frosty ground, in the open. Ali, avoiding Mortenson's eyes, said that the village had no school, and the government did not provide a teacher. So they shared a teacher with the neighbouring village and he taught in Korphe three days a week. The rest of the time the children were left alone to practise the lessons he left for them. Mortenson watched, his heart in his throat, as the children sat in a neat circle and began copying multiplication tables. Most scratched in the dirt with sticks they had brought for the purpose. "Can you imagine a class in America without a teacher, sitting there quietly and working on their lessons? There was such fierceness in their desire to learn that I knew I had to do something."

(Greg Mortenson and David Oliver Relin, Three Cups of Tea)
