He saw a most wonderful sight. Through a little hole in the wall, the children had crept in, and they were sitting in the branches of the trees. In every tree that he could see, there was a little child. And the trees were so glad to have the children back again that they had covered themselves with blossoms, and were waving their arms gently above the children's heads. The birds were flying about and twittering with delight, and the flowers were looking up through the green grass and laughing. It was a lovely scene, only in one corner it was still winter. It was the farthest corner of the garden, and in it was standing a little boy. He was so small that he could not reach up to the branches of the tree, and he was wondering all round it, crying bitterly. The poor tree was still quite covered with frost and snow, and the North wind was blowing and roaring above it. "Climb up ! Little boy," said the tree, and it bent its branches down as low as it could, but the boy was too tiny.

Questions :

7. What was the most wonderful sight ?
8. How did the children creep in ?
9. Why were the trees happy ?
10. Why was one tree without flowers ?
11. Why could not one boy climb the tree ?

Sparrows are found in many parts of the world and they are of several kinds. The one that is best known to us is the house-sparrow. But there is also the hedge-sparrow that makes its nest in hedges and bushes. A noisy bird, the house sparrow has its own song, mainly made up of a series of calls and twitters. It makes its nest in some hole or some niche in the house. This nest is no more than an arrangement, not a very tidy one of paper and straw which may be lined with wool and hair. The hedge-sparrow is more slender than the house-sparrow. It is in brown, black and bluish-green colour. It too sings, often a warbling song. Like the house-sparrow, it hops on the ground and makes its own untidy nest. Sparrows eat seeds of many different kinds but much more than seeds, they feed on insects. They lay eggs which may number one to six at a time.
