- Q. 6 Read the following passage and answer the questions appended to it:

Sports and games are also very useful for character- training. In their lessons at school, boys and girls may learn about such virtues as unselfishness, courage, discipline and love of one's country; but what is learned in the books can not have the same deep effect on child's character as what is learned by experience. The ordinary day-school can not give much practical training in living because most of the pupil's time is spent in classes, studying lessons. So, it is what the pupils do in their spare time that really prepares them to take their place in society as citizens when they grow up. If each of them learns to work for his team and not for himself on the football field, he will later find it natural to work for the good of his country instead of only for his own benefit.

What if some one told you about a kind of grass that grow as tall as the tallest trees? A grass that can be made as strong as steel? A grass from which houses, furnitures, boats and hundreds of other useful things can be made? A grass that you would even enjoy eating? Would you believe of that person? You should, for that grass is bamboo, the "wood" of 1001 uses. Bamboo may look like woods, but it is part of the family of plants that include wheat, oats and barley. This grass is not just a material for making useful products. Young bamboo is eaten, often mixed with other vegetables. A Bamboo grows in many parts of the world. In the United States it grows in area from Virginia West to Indiana and South to Florida and Texas.

| (vii) Spill the beans | |

Q. 6 Read the following passage and answer the questions appended to it:

I worry about the private automobile. It is a dirty, noisy, wasteful and lonely means of travel. It pollutes the air, ruins the safety and sociability of the street and exercises upon the individual a discipline which takes away far more freedom than it gives him. It causes an enormous amount of land to be unnecessarily obstructed from nature and from plant life and to become devoid of any natural function. It explodes cities, grievously impairs the whole institution of neighborliness, fragmentizes and destroys communities. It has already spelled the end of our cities as real cultural and social communities, and has made impossible the construction of any others in their place. Together with the airplane, it has crowded out others, more civilized and more convenient means of transport, leaving older people, poor people and children in a worse situation than they were a hundred years ago. It continues to lend a terrible element of fragility to our civilization, placing us in a situation where our life would break down completely if anything ever interfered with the oil supply.

Questions:

- | | |
|---|----|
| (i) How does the private automobile affect the individual? | 02 |
| (ii) What effect does the private automobile have on plant life? | 02 |
| (iii) Write a précis of the passage in about one third of its length and also suggest a suitable title to it. | 06 |
