THEME 1: Rights and responsibilities

1 Study Source A below.

Source A: UK Identity Cards

The introduction of a UK Identity Card has been discussed for a number of years. Politicians have different views about its usefulness.

A recent Home Secretary said: "UK Identity Cards will provide people with a convenient, safe and secure way to prove their identity in a world where proof of identity is needed daily. We believe that people will welcome them. They will also have some benefit in tackling terrorism."

However, another MP said: "The whole idea of British citizens having such a card is simply unacceptable."

The Home Secretary replied: "I respect his position, although I do not agree with him on this point. There has been a voluntary Identity Card in France for many years and French citizens would not agree that it breached their human rights."

Source C: Prime Minister accused of empty promises on fluoride

Echo picture by Chris Moorhouse. Order no: 8708655

Gordon Brown, a former Prime Minister, was accused of making empty promises to the people of Southampton over plans to improve dental health by adding fluoride to their tap water.

Campaigners spoke out after the former Government's health spokesperson in the House of Lords, said they "continued to support" the controversial scheme.

During a visit to Southampton last year, Gordon Brown said that the people of Southampton should decide if fluoride should be added to drinking water.

Local MPs have called for the project to be shelved in the face of massive opposition.

- More than 10,000 people took part in a public consultation held by the Health Authority. 72% were not in favour of adding fluoride. The Health Authority claimed it was only those who were against fluoride who took part.
- A separate telephone poll produced a different view. 38% opposed fluoride compared to 32% who supported it.

However, Southampton City Council supported the scheme.

Hampshire Against Fluoride is encouraging voters to support only anti-fluoride candidates in this year's local and Parliamentary elections.

The Daily Echo, supported by some local MPs, has backed calls for a referendum on the fluoride issue.

Source F: Waste

As European society has grown wealthier it has created more and more rubbish. Each year in the European Union (EU) we throw away about 3.5 tonnes of waste for every man, woman and child.

Two thirds of what we throw away is either burnt in incinerators, or dumped into landfill sites.

The EU aims to cut the amount of rubbish generated through:
