A Blog about my holidays

General Comments

This is a well written account in which the candidate has been guided by but has not adhered slavishly to the bullet points and in which the personal perspective is clear. That a Task Planning Form has not been used does not disadvantage the candidate in any way. There is focus on the task throughout, a logical progression from point to point and a good linking of ideas, especially within paragraphs, both of which mean that the scenarios for the use of various tenses never seem contrived. It is a long piece of 500 + words but, unlike many of similar length, the candidate does not run out of fresh ideas towards the end.

Content

The piece meets all the criteria for a Content mark in the Very Good band in that everything is relevant, the response is clear and detailed virtually throughout and the many ideas and opinions are extensively explained and justified. As such a mark of 13 would be too low and would not do the work justice. What, therefore, has to be considered is whether the mark should be 14 or15. Well developed and detailed sentences such as

Ich liebe Srasbourg, weil es toll für einkaufen ist, deshalb kaufe ich viele Kleidungen und das kostet viel Geld.

Ich werde ans Meer fahren, um schwimmen zu gehen, weil das Wasser sehr Blau ist.

while containing very minor errors certainly steer the mark towards 15 as do well linked ideas as demonstrated, for example, by

Ich bin für fünf Wochen geblieben, aber normalerweise sind wir für drei Wochen dort, also war es ein bisschen langweilig.

There are, however, areas where meaning breaks down completely as in aber wir gah selten gestoppt. or partially as inalso wir gehen dorthin jedes Jahr werde. and ...aber meine Schwester hat nicht Spass gemacht.

Those less deft passages, coupled with the repetition of material about having been to a restaurant, albeit with different developments in each case, carry the mark down to 14.

Range of Language

A wide range of vocabulary which is wholly appropriate to the Task – even the reference to clothes shopping is made relevant to the holiday experience – a variety of both coordinating and subordinating conjunctions, a range of more complex structures, different tenses and verb forms such as the conditional and subjunctive and some well worked extended sentences containing more than one dependent clause, combine well to produce a fluent and coherent whole and a mark in the 9-10 band is justified. The candidate does, however, tend to reply on weil clauses, especially towards the end, to introduce reasons for and justifications of opinions and for that reason a mark of 9 rather than 10 is fairer.

Accuracy

A mark of 5 does not of necessity mean that the piece is totally correct and error-free. There are hardly any errors in this piece and, where they do occur, they arise from the use of more complex language. Both word order after coordinating and subordinating conjunctions and the inversion of subject and verb are secure as are tenses and verb forms. The scribbled out gegangen can be regarded as a momentary aberration and there is no reason whatsoever to consider a mark other than 5 for Accuracy.

Student 1 - Task 2

Describing my School

General Comments

The candidate has sought successfully to cover all aspects of school life as it affects them and has linked the comparison of the English and German school systems well to the description of the exchange visit so that it fits neatly into the whole piece. As with Task 1, the candidate has used the bullet points purely as guidance in order to present a personal view of the topic. Good use has been made of the Task Planning Form in that nothing is repeated and the words are listed in the order of their use. At no stage is the focus on the Task lost despite the length of the piece and information and ideas are well linked throughout. Although the piece is not entirely error-free it does exemplify work which is worthy of full marks.

Content

Everything which is conveyed is fully relevant to the Task and there is a great wealth of detail in both the information given and the explanation of and justification for ideas and opinions. Beyond that, ideas are well linked and the whole piece flows seamlessly from one point to the next. There can be no doubt that the Content mark should be well into the Very Good band. Given the length of the piece it is inevitable that there will be some errors but only very rarely is clarity of expression compromised e.g. Ohne Zweifel finde ich beschäftigt die Bibliothek super....but those minor lapses are more than compensated for by such sentences as Persönlich meine ich, dass das Schulsystem in England besser als Deutschland ist, da die Lehrer sich mehr für die Studenten interessieren. It would be extremely easy to identify the slight flaws in the piece but, by the same token, it would be churlish, given the abundance of well-presented and lucidly detailed information conveyed, to award a mark of anything but 15 for Content given that one of the criteria for a mark in this range is that almost all information should be conveyed clearly.

Range of Language

The candidate has been at pains to ensure the use of a really wide range of vocabulary which is fully relevant to the Task and has coupled that with a variety of conjunctions, complex structures, tenses and verb forms, all of which have coalesced into a fluent and coherent whole. Deft little touches such as Ich würde Prüfungen verbieten – kein Stress mehr!, the successful use of more than one dependent clause in the same sentence e.g. Ich weiss, dass ich gute Noten bekommen kann, da die Lehrer leidenschaftlich über ihre Arbeit sind. and the equally successful use of wann, wohin, was and warum as subordinating conjunctions are sufficient per se to ensure a mark in the top band for Range of Language. When other aspects such as the use of relative clauses and the passive voice are taken into consideration there is every justification for a mark of 10.

Accuracy

As has been mentioned above the piece is not entirely error-free but practically all the mistakes which occur arise from the use of more complex language and at no stage do they and the occasional omission impact negatively on the clear conveying of information. Verb forms, tenses and word order are all secure and the piece is certainly largely accurate. As such all the criteria for a mark of 5 are met.

General Comments

All the bullet points are relevant to the title and enable the candidate to focus fully on the Task. Each point has been addressed in turn but the response is an individual one in which the personal perspective is clear. Despite the 500 + word length there is no repetition of material, most of which conveys information in a clear manner. The lack of a Task Planning Form does not disadvantage the candidate to any great extent given the plethora of information presented but use thereof may have helped to eliminate the occasional spelling mistakes which appear. Taking the piece as a whole it certainly has far more strengths than comparative weaknesses.

Contents

Although the opening paragraph is rather shaky and not particularly well organised the piece clearly improves as it goes on and from an organisational point of view it can be placed in the Very Good band because information and ideas are generally presented in a logical manner within paragraphs. Beyond that a case can be made for a mark either at the top end of the Good band or at the bottom end of the Very Good band. Failed communication through the use of a subordinate clause on its own as a sentence Obwohl ich meinen Badeanzug zu Hause vergessen habe. or opaque passages such as Sie hat nicht so gut schwimmen. and Nachher haben wir uns entschieden ein traditionelles französisches ausgesucht, wo es viel Auswahl gab. Jedoch hat mein Vater gefunden – er bien zahlen ohnmächtig. certainly support the case for the former. Those are, however, isolated examples from an extended piece of writing in which almost all the information is conveyed clearly and with detailed development where appropriate and in which ideas and opinions are explained in some detail in several places especially in the final paragraph. It is a borderline decision but there is just enough overall quality and evidence to support a mark of 13.

Range of Language

The candidate has used a good range of both vocabulary and more complex structures which allow for some precision of communication. Because of that a mark in one of the top two bands has to be considered. There is good use of comparatives and of the superlative, of zu + infinitive, of the conditional and subjunctive – although the sequence of tenses is not always observed in their use - and of wo as a subordinating conjunction, all of which combine to produce some very pleasing more complex sentences. Accurate, albeit repeated, use of the same genitive is also to be commended and deserves credit. Nonetheless there is some reliance in places on weil and obwohl clauses, quite a few shorter sentences and some less deft handling of some of the attempts at more extended language. There is also not the confident manipulation of language needed for a mark in the 9-10 band. A mark of 8 takes all the above factors into consideration.

Accuracy

The factors which need to be considered when awarding the Accuracy mark for this piece are its length and the complexity of language used. It is rare that a passage of this length is error-free and this is no exception. The more simple language is extremely secure and errors do tend to arise from the use of more complex language. Verbs and tenses are in most cases accurate as is word order. Because of the examples cited above in Content there is a case for 4 for Accuracy but, on the whole, the piece is largely accurate and a mark of 5 can be justified by that overarching criterion. As with the Content mark it is a borderline decision.

Student 2 Task 2

Describing my School

General Comments

This is a lengthy piece of 500+ words but one in which there is no repetition of ideas or material and in which the candidate has given full expression to their personal standpoint, using the bullet points – which, by their nature, invite the expression of opinions – as guidance and not as a straitjacket which restricts their approach to the topic. Material is presented in a clear and logical manner and is generally well linked, especially within paragraphs. The political comment, which could have been considered irrelevant if less deftly handled, is not out of place given its context. Not having used a Task Planning Form has certainly not disadvantaged the candidate in any way.

Content

Given the broad sweep of information and the generally detailed development thereof the Content mark has to be in the Very Good band and 13 does not enter the equation. Clear information leaps out from virtually every sentence and there is good detail for the most part, e.g. Ich bin überzeugt, dass das Schulwesen in Deutschland viel beser als bei uns ist. Zum Beispiel in den Freistunden muss man nicht in die Schule bleiben. There is some good detailed explanation of opinions, e.g. In Wahrheit hasse ich Mathe, denn meine Lehrer ist nicht nur nützlos sondern auch spricht er zu viel. but there are also places where the explanation is quite simplistic, e.g. Das ist ärgerlich, denn ich studiere Geschichte nicht. or where a good opportunity for explanation has been missed, e.g. Es wäre toll, wenn ich später im Ausland arbeiten könnte. That, coupled with some areas where the meaning becomes unclear, e.g. Es wäre besser, wenn das Wettter nicht so sclect besucht wäre. Wir haben viele Friedhöfe um unsere Ehre zu beweisen. and Ich denke, dass ich es gelingen werde, Deutsch studieren.... sways the mark to 14 rather than 15. That rewards the fact that almost all the information is clearly conveyed while allowing for the areas of slight weakness identified above.

Range of Language

The candidate has used a wide variety of vocabulary which is wholly appropriate to the Task and has coupled this with a very good range of more complex structures which are generally confidently handled. A good range of tenses, the use of the passive voice with a modal verb – Ausserdem müssen die Gebäude renoviert werden – and both warum and wo as subordinating conjunctions also add to the weight of evidence for a mark in the 9 – 10 band. What just tips the balance towards 9 are the slight over-reliance on both weil and dass, some shorter sentences which could have been successfully combined and, as shown above as examples in Content, some clumsy handling of albeit complex language in places. It is, however, very much a borderline decision given the broad sweep of language.

Accuracy

Omissions, word order errors, spelling mistakes and errors in verb forms are very few and far between. Where they do occur they arise from the use of more complex language. The piece easily meets all the criteria for 5 in that it is largely accurate, there are hardly any major errors and verbs and tenses are secure.

Student 3 Task 1

Die Schule

General Comments

The candidate has chosen not to address all the bullet points, which encourage the expression of opinions, and has successfully combined the third and fourth ones. There is a good structure and a logical progression and flow to the work, something which is helped by the ordering of the wholly appropriate vocabulary on the Task Planning Form. The title is sufficiently broad enough to ensure that all the information presented is fully relevant to the Task.

Content

The candidate has approached the Task positively and has managed to convey a lot of clear information, seeking to develop it in a general manner where appropriate with the result that we see things from their point of view rather than being presented merely with a description of the school. As such it deserves to be placed in the Good (10 – 12 band) but no higher. There are several opinions which are simply but well explained and the accumulative effect of these, coupled with the information conveyed, justifies a mark of 11 rather than 10. 12 would have been considered but only on rare occasions are there extended explanations of opinions e.g. Ich liebe die Schule, weil sie sehr gross ist und wir haben eine grosse Turnhalle. It is, however, quite often the case that opportunities to expand upon material are missed, e.g. Ich würde lieber ein rosa T-Shirt, schwarze leggings und einen blauen Pulli tragen.

Range of Language

Vocabulary is fully appropriate to the Task and there is a good range of successfully used tenses. There are, however, several shorter sentences and a definite over-reliance on weil clauses. The mark is on the 6-7 borderline but there are some factors which just carry it to the latter. There is a successful, albeit simple relative clause – Sie ist eine Gesamtschule, die in liegt. In addition seit + the present tense appears as does the subjunctive and modal verbs are used accurately. All those create a degree of precision of communication which deserves to be recognised.

Accuracy

Despite the occasional error verbs and tenses are secure, as is word order, and mistakes, on the few occasions that they occur, stem from the use of more complex language.und muss mann eine Uniform tragen certainly jars but the piece meets the overarching criterion of being largely accurate with hardly any major errors and a few minor ones. As is the case with the Range of Language mark this is a borderline decision.

Student 3 Task 2

Die Gesundheit

General Comments

The general nature of the title gives scope for a broad view of the subject while the bullet points all keep the focus of attention on the topic. The candidate has used those for guidance and has successfully combined the third and last ones in the same paragraph rather than look at each one in the order in which they are presented. The vocabulary on the Task Planning Form, all of which is fully appropriate to the topic, has been arranged in the order in which it is used and this helps the piece to flow.

Content

All the information conveyed is well ordered and fully relevant to the Task and is, for the most part, clear. Those factors coupled with some extended justification of opinions, e.g. Ich liebe Tanzen, denn es macht viel Spass und ich mag mich fit halten. could conceivably point to a mark in the Very Good band but on too many occasions the candidate, while conveying clear information, has either kept the justification of opinions simple, e.g. Mein Lieblingsessen ist Pizza und Pomme frites, weil es sehr lecker ist. or has eschewed opportunities for more detailed development, e.g. Gestern sind wir ins Schwimmbad gegangen, es war sehr unterhaltsam. When less clear passages such as In der Zukunft werde ich eine Diät machen, weil ich mir reicht's zu viele Kilos auf denn Rippen zu haben. are also taken into consideration the Content mark has to be in the Good rather than Very Good band. Although a mark of 11 could be considered 12 is, on balance, fairer given the amount of clear material conveyed and the ordered manner in which it is presented.

Range of Language

As mentioned in the general comments the vocabulary, which is varied, is wholly appropriate to the Task and there is, despite some over-reliance on weil and dass, a fairly good range of more complex structures which are used effectively enough and with some confidence to allow the candidate to communicate with a degree of precision throughout the piece. There is, however, certainly not the wide range of vocabulary and structures needed for a mark in the 9-10 band. Modal verbs and different tenses are successfully used, as is zu + infinitive, and those, despite some misuse of words, e.g. bekommen rather than werden, add to the weight of evidence for a mark of 8 rather than 7. The general precision of communication throughout the piece is the deciding factor for the former mark.

Accuracy

Verb forms, despite the omission of getrunken in the final paragraph, and tenses are secure throughout as is word order both where inversion is needed and in subordinate clauses. There are very few errors, even in more complex language where it is used and the piece easily meets all the criteria for 5 for Accuracy. A lower mark does not really come into consideration.
