OCR GCSE (SHORT COURSE) IN HISTORY B (1037) (MODERN WORLD HISTORY)

SECTION A: SPECIFICATION SUMMARY

TIERS

The scheme of assessment consists of one tier covering the whole of the ability range grades G to A*.

COMPONENTS

Candidates must complete two components:

Component	Title	Duration	Weighting
1	Paper 1	1 hour 45 mins	75%
2	Coursework	-	25%
82	Coursework Carried Forward	-	25%

QUESTION PAPERS

Paper 1 is divided into two sections testing the Key Questions from the core content. Section A has two source-based questions; candidates must answer one of these. Section B has four structured questions of which candidates must answer one.

INTERNAL ASSESSMENT (COURSEWORK)

Candidates must complete one assignment based on one coursework unit. This can be chosen from the list of coursework units or can be a Centre-devised unit. The content studied must be different from that studied for the question paper. It should be possible for candidates to satisfy the coursework requirements by writing no more than 1 250 words.

SECTION B: GENERAL INFORMATION

1 Introduction

1.1 RATIONALE

This specification requires the study of:

- key events, people, changes and issues identified through key questions and focus points in the core and in a coursework unit. For example, the core is an outline study of international relations between 1919 and 1989, and charts major changes such as the collapse of international peace in the 1930s, and the collapse of communism in Europe in the 1980s. Each of the key questions defines a key issue such as ‘To what extent was the League of Nations a success?’ Key events such as the signing of the peace treaties in 1919-20, the invasion of Manchuria in 1931, and the Cuban Missile Crisis are included, as are the roles of key people such as Lloyd George, Hitler and Gorbachev;
- key features and characteristics of the periods, societies, situations specified, and, where appropriate, the social, cultural, religious and ethnic diversity of the societies studied and the experiences of men and women in these societies in the coursework unit, for example, in Germany – The Rise of Hitler and Nazi Germany, key features and characteristics such as political extremism and militarism, and the impact of economic collapse on political life; social, cultural, religious and ethnic diversity in contrasting society and culture in the Weimar and Nazi periods, and in the Nazi treatment of ethnic and religious minorities; the experiences of men and women throughout the period, but in particular experiences of women in Nazi Germany;
- history on two different scales: international through the study of international relations, and national by offering the opportunity to study in depth a significant period from the history of one country in the coursework unit, for example, Russia – the Bolsheviks, Lenin and Stalin; and the USA – boom, bust and recovery.
- history in two different ways: an outline study of developments in international relations from the end of the First World War to the fall of Communism in Eastern Europe, and in the coursework unit a study in depth over a shorter period of societies ‘in the round’, for example, the USA – boom, bust and recovery. The core content will therefore be concerned with a single theme (international relations) over a longer period of time than that covered by the Depth Studies. The coursework units will be more concerned with the various aspects of political, social, economic and cultural development in a single society;
- history from a variety of perspectives - political, social, economic and cultural – in particular through the coursework unit for instance, in the USA –boom, bust and recovery, the political consequences of the Wall Street Crash, and the differing responses of Republicans and Democrats to the crash; the experiences of different social groups in the 1920; the economic causes and consequences of the Wall Street Crash; and cultural developments such as the impact of motion pictures;

- history through a range of sources of information, including ICT, appropriate to the period, such as written and visual sources, artefacts, music, oral accounts, and buildings and sites.

1.2 CERTIFICATION TITLE

This specification will be shown on a certificate as:

OCR GCSE (Short Course) in History B

1.3 LEVEL OF QUALIFICATION

This qualification is approved by the regulatory authorities (QCA, ACCAC and CCEA) as part of the National Qualifications Framework.

Candidates who gain grades G to D will have achieved an award at Foundation Level.

Candidates who gain grades C to A* will have achieved an award at Intermediate Level.

Two GCSEs at grade G to D and two GCSEs at grade C to A* are equivalent to one three-unit GNVQ at Foundation and Intermediate Level respectively.

Four GCSEs at grade G to D and four GCSEs at grade C to A* are equivalent to one six-unit GNVQ at Foundation and Intermediate Level respectively.

1.4 RECOMMENDED PRIOR LEARNING

Candidates who are taking courses leading to this qualification at Key Stage 4 should normally have followed the corresponding Key Stage 3 programme of study within the National Curriculum.

Candidates entering this course should have achieved a general educational level equivalent to National Curriculum Level 3, or a distinction at Entry Level within the National Qualifications Framework.

1.5 PROGRESSION

GCSE qualifications are general qualifications which enable candidates to progress either directly to employment, or to proceed to further qualifications.

Many candidates who enter employment with one or more GCSEs will undertake training or further part-time study with the support of their employer.

Progression to further study from GCSE will depend upon the number and nature of the grades achieved. Broadly, candidates who are awarded mainly grades G to D at GCSE could either strengthen their base through further study of qualifications at Foundation Level within the National Qualifications Framework or could proceed to Intermediate level. Candidates who are awarded mainly grades C to A* at GCSE would be well prepared for study at Advanced Level within the National Qualifications Framework.

1.6 OVERLAP WITH OTHER QUALIFICATIONS

This specification does not overlap with any other GCSE qualifications.

1.7 RESTRICTIONS ON CANDIDATE ENTRIES

Candidates who enter for this GCSE specification may not also enter for any other GCSE specification with the certification title History in the same examination series.

Candidates who enter for this GCSE may, however, also enter for any GNVQ specification with the certification title History in the same examination series. They may enter for any NVQ qualification. They may also enter for the Entry Level Certificate in History.

Every specification is assigned to a national classification code indicating the subject area to which it belongs.

Centres should be aware that candidates who enter for more than one GCSE qualification with the same classification code will have only one grade (the highest) counted for the purpose of the School and College Performance Tables.

The classification code for this specification is 4010.

1.8 CODE OF PRACTICE REQUIREMENTS

These specifications will comply in every respect with the revised Code of Practice requirements for courses starting in September 2001.

1.9 STATUS IN WALES AND NORTHERN IRELAND

This specification has been approved by ACCAC for use by Centres in Wales and by CCEA for use by Centres in Northern Ireland.

Candidates in Wales and Northern Ireland should not be disadvantaged by terms, legislation or aspects of government that are different from those in England. Where such situations might occur, including in the external assessment, the terms used have been selected as neutral, so that candidates may apply whatever is appropriate to their own situation.

OCR has taken great care in the preparation of this specification and assessment material to avoid bias of any kind.

OCR will provide specifications, assessments and supporting documentation only in English.

Further information on the provision of assessment materials in Welsh and Irish may be obtained from the Information Bureau at OCR (telephone 01223 553998).

2 Specification Aims

This specification gives candidates the opportunity to:

- acquire knowledge and understanding of the human past;
- investigate historical events, changes, people and issues;
- develop understanding of how the past has been represented and interpreted;
- use historical sources critically in their historical context;
- organise and communicate knowledge and understanding of history;
- draw conclusions and appreciate that these and other historical conclusions are liable to reassessment in the light of new or reinterpreted evidence;
- develop an interest in and an enthusiasm for History, and to acquire a sound basis for further historical study.

It should be noted that not all these aims can be translated readily into assessment objectives.

3 Assessment Objectives

Assessment Objective 1

Candidates must demonstrate the ability to recall, select, organise and deploy knowledge of the specification content to communicate it through description, analysis and explanation of:

- the events, people, changes and issues studied;
- the key features and characteristics of the periods, societies or situations studied.

Assessment Objective 2

Candidates must demonstrate the ability to use historical sources critically in their context, by comprehending, analysing, evaluating and interpreting them.

Assessment Objective 3

Candidates must demonstrate the ability to comprehend, analyse and evaluate, in relation to the historical context, how and why historical events, people, situations and changes have been interpreted and represented in different ways.

Although the assessment objectives are expressed separately, they are not wholly discrete.

4 Scheme of Assessment

4.1 TIERS

The scheme of assessment consists of one tier covering the whole of the ability range grades G to A*. Candidates achieving less than the minimum mark for grade G will be ungraded.

4.2 COMPONENTS

Component	Title	Duration	Weighting
1	Paper 1	1 hour 45 mins	75%
2	Coursework	-	25%
82	Coursework Carried Forward	-	25%

4.3 QUESTION PAPERS

Paper 1 (1 hour 45 minutes)

This paper tests the key questions from the core content. It will be divided into two sections. There will be a total of 60 marks.

In Section A there will be two source-based questions of which candidates must answer one. These questions will test Assessment Objectives 1, 2 and 3. Each question will be structured into five or six parts and will carry a total of 40 marks.

In Section B there will be four structured questions, testing Assessment Objective 1, of which candidates must answer one. Each question will be structured into three parts (4, 6, 10 marks).

4.4 WEIGHTING OF ASSESSMENT OBJECTIVES

The relationship between the components and the assessment objectives of the scheme of assessment is shown in the following grid.

Component	Assessment Objective 1	Assessment Objectives 2 and 3	Total
Paper 1	45%	30%	75%
Coursework	25%	-	25%
Total	70%	30%	100%

4.5 ENTRY OPTIONS

Candidates who intend to take both components 1 and 2 should be entered for 1037 with no option code specified. Candidates who are re-sitting and intend to carry forward their mark for the coursework unit should be entered for 1037 option C.

Option Code	Title	Components to be taken
	History B (Modern World History)	1 and 2
C	History B (Modern World History) Coursework Carried Forward	1 and 82

4.6 INTERNAL ASSESSMENT (COURSEWORK)

There will be a total of 25 marks.

Candidates must complete one coursework assignment (25 marks) on one coursework unit. The coursework unit must not duplicate the content studied for the question paper.

The coursework assignment will cover the significance of an individual, development, place or event (Assessment Objective 1).

In order that coursework arises from defined and substantial areas of content, assignments must address issues which permit candidates to make use of their broad contextual knowledge of the coursework unit. Tasks must focus on the idea of significance, and this can only be judged adequately in the context of developments over time.

Coursework consultants will monitor the suitability of assignments in meeting the above requirements. Teachers should submit coursework proposals and mark schemes to the consultant at least one term in advance of the intended period of teaching.

It should be possible for candidates to satisfy the coursework requirements by writing no more than 1 250 words. However, this figure is given only as guidance, and it is recognised that many candidates may do more or less than this.

A Coursework Guide is available from OCR on request. This contains advice on constructing coursework units and on setting and marking assignments, and includes approved tasks for teachers who do not wish to set their own.

Examples of appropriate tasks are given in Sub-section 6.

Full details of internal assessment can be found in Sub-section 7.

4.7 ASSESSMENT OF WRITTEN COMMUNICATION

Candidates are expected to:

- present relevant information in a form that suits its purpose;
- ensure text is legible and that spelling, punctuation and grammar are accurate, so that meaning is clear.

Where appropriate, they should also use a suitable structure and style of writing. All components require responses in continuous prose.

The quality of written communication covers clarity of expression, structure of arguments, presentation of ideas, grammar, punctuation and spelling. It is one of the criteria used to determine the place of a response within a level in mark schemes. This applies both to the question paper and coursework.

4.8 DIFFERENTIATION

In the question paper differentiation will be achieved by the use of levels of response mark schemes to assess candidates' different levels of response to common questions. In coursework, differentiation will be achieved by the setting of common tasks and the use of levels of response mark schemes to assess candidates' responses to these tasks.

4.9 AWARDING OF GRADES

The written paper will have a weighting of 75% and internal assessment a weighting of 25%.

A candidate's mark for each of the components taken will be combined in the appropriate weighting to give the candidate's total mark for the specification. The candidate's grade will be determined by this total mark. Candidates achieving less than the minimum mark for Grade G will be ungraded.

4.10 GRADE DESCRIPTIONS

Grade descriptions are provided to give a general indication of the standards of achievement likely to have been shown by the candidates awarded particular grades. The descriptions must be interpreted in relation to the content specified in Sub-section 5; they are not designed to define that content. The grade awarded will depend in practice upon the extent to which the candidate has met the assessment objectives overall. Shortcomings in some aspects of the assessment may be balanced by better performance in others.

Grade F

Candidates recall, select and organise some relevant knowledge of the specification content. They identify and describe some reasons, results and changes in relation to the events, people, changes and issues studied. They describe a few features of an event, issue or period, including characteristic ideas, beliefs and attitudes.

Candidates comprehend sources of information and, taking them at their face value, begin to consider their usefulness for investigating historical issues and draw simple conclusions. They identify some differences between ways in which events, people or issues have been represented and interpreted and may identify some of the reasons for these.

Grade C

Candidates recall, select, organise and deploy historical knowledge of the specification content to support, generally with accuracy and relevance, their descriptions and explanations of the events, periods and societies studied.

Candidates produce structured descriptions and explanations of the events, people, changes and issues studied. Their descriptions and explanations show understanding of relevant causes, consequences and changes. They also consider and analyse key features and characteristics of the periods, societies and situations studied, including the variety of ideas, attitudes and beliefs held by people at the time.

Candidates evaluate and use critically a range of sources of information to investigate issues and draw relevant conclusions. They recognise and comment on how and why events, people and issues have been interpreted and represented in different ways.

Grade A

Candidates recall, select, organise and deploy historical knowledge of the specification content accurately, effectively and with consistency, to substantiate arguments and reach historical judgements.

Candidates produce developed, reasoned and well substantiated analyses and explanations which consider the events, people, changes and issues studied in their wider historical context. They also consider the diversity and, where appropriate, the interrelationship of the features and ideas, attitudes and beliefs in the periods, societies and situations studied.

Candidates evaluate and use critically a range of sources of information in their historical context to investigate issues and reach reasoned and substantiated conclusions. They recognise and comment on how and why events, people and issues have been interpreted and represented in different ways and consider their value in relation to their historical context.

SECTION C: SPECIFICATION CONTENT

5 Specification Content

The content consists of a compulsory Core and a range of coursework units from which one must be studied. Content is explained through a number of Key Questions and Focus Points. The Focus Points provide guidance on what is involved in addressing each Key Question. COURSEWORK UNIT 7: CENTRE-DEvised UNIT

Units devised by Centres must be comparable to the units detailed above in terms of length and breadth, and must be structured in a similar fashion i.e. through Key Questions and Focus Points.

Centre-devised units must be approved by a coursework consultant before teaching commences.

SECTION D: COURSEWORK

6 Coursework Tasks

6.1 NATURE OF COURSEWORK

Candidates must complete one coursework assignment based on a coursework unit. The coursework unit must not duplicate the content studied for the question paper.

Centres devising their own coursework units must ensure that these are comparable to units in Sub-section 5. Centres may, for example, design units which are longer in length but less detailed than these units such as ‘Civil Rights in the USA, 1945-c.2000’. Centre-devised units must be structured using Key Questions and Focus Points. It is expected that most units will have three Key Questions each with four or five associated Focus Points. The latter should be used to indicate what is required if the Key Question is to be addressed adequately. Approval for Centre-devised coursework units must be obtained from OCR through the coursework consultant. Details of assignments, resources and mark schemes should be forwarded to the consultant well in advance of the intended teaching time.

Coursework assignments must arise from the study of substantial areas of content within the coursework units. Each assignment should be completed by candidates shortly after they have completed the study of the relevant coursework unit.

The tasks in the coursework assignment must focus on the idea of significance, this can only be judged in the context of developments over time.

The coursework assignment must provide candidates with an opportunity to address the appropriate assessment objectives as set out in the Scheme of Assessment. When setting coursework tasks, teachers should bear in mind the marking criteria set out on page 61 and should ensure that tasks enable candidates of all abilities to show positive achievement in relation to these criteria. This will involve setting common tasks and using levels of response mark schemes.

Coursework should be of around 1 250 words in length. Candidates should not, however, be penalised for exceeding this. Conversely, for certain candidates it would not be appropriate to require pieces of coursework of this length.

Coursework assignments should be set in the form of a question to be answered, an assertion or hypothesis to be tested, or a problem, issue or controversy to be investigated. Coursework may be in the form of an essay or project. Where these approaches are used candidates will need clear guidance about how to structure and present their work, and about which understanding and skills are being tested. Alternately, assignments may be structured into a series of shorter tasks. Where this approach is used there must be opportunities provided for some extended writing. It is also important to set open-ended questions which can be responded to at a variety of levels.

Many Centres will want guidance and advice to help them devise appropriate coursework assignments. Centres may use assignments and mark schemes from the Coursework Guide which is available from OCR. Alternatively, Centres may devise their own assignments and mark schemes. Coursework consultants have been appointed by OCR to provide advice about the suitability of tasks, and they will monitor the suitability of assignments in meeting the above requirements. Teachers should submit coursework proposals and mark schemes to the consultant at least one term in advance of the intended period of teaching. Consultants will be responsible for monitoring the suitability of tasks in relation to the assessment objectives and the specification content. Submissions to the consultant must include assignments, supporting materials (for example, sources) and mark schemes.

Levels of response mark schemes must be constructed for each task. These mark schemes should relate to the appropriate assessment objective(s) and the marking criteria set out below. Marking should be positive, rewarding achievement rather than penalising failure.

Candidates' responses should first be placed in the appropriate level. This judgement must be directly and exclusively linked to the relevant assessment objective(s). No other objectives may be assessed. It is the quality of the candidate's work and not its quantity or presentation which is assessed. Responses should then be awarded a mark within that level. The criteria used to award marks within a level can include: the number of examples used; the amount of relevant supporting detail; and the quality of explanation. The quality of candidates' written communication must be one of the criteria used in awarding marks within a level. This includes clarity of expression, structure of arguments, presentation of ideas, grammar, punctuation and spelling. Instructions to this effect must be included in centres' mark schemes.

After candidates have completed the assignment the mark scheme should be refined in the light of candidates' responses.

Where two or more teachers in a Centre are involved in the marking of coursework, internal standardisation of marks must take place prior to the submission of marks to OCR. All assessed work should be annotated to indicate where, in the work, evidence for the marks awarded may be found. Annotations may be made on a cover sheet and/or at the appropriate points in the margins of the work.

6.2 EXEMPLAR COURSEWORK TASKS

Coursework Unit 5: South Africa – The Apartheid State and the Struggle Against It.

ASSESSMENT OBJECTIVE 1

Instructions

Answer all the questions. You should try to keep your answers within the 1 250 word limit. You may use your books and notes but you should also research information on relevant CD-Roms and websites.

- 1 Select and explain the most important turning points in Nelson Mandela's life. [6]
- 2 Explain the part played by external pressure (e.g. economic sanctions and international isolation in sport) in the fight against apartheid and minority rule in South Africa. [7]
- 3 Who was the more important in bringing about the end of apartheid and minority rule in South Africa, Nelson Mandela or President de Klerk? Explain your answer. [12]

Mark Scheme

Candidates' answers should first be placed in the appropriate level. Where there is a range of marks in the level the quality of the candidate's written communication should be an important factor in determining which mark to award the response. Quality of written communication includes: clarity of expression; structure of arguments; presentation of ideas; grammar; punctuation and spelling.

Question 1

- Level 1: Candidates list many events from Mandela's life. Little attempt has been made to select on the basis of significance and answers consist of description rather than explanation. [1-2]
- Level 2: Candidates have made an attempt to select events because of their significance. However, the events are described rather than their importance explained. [3-4]
- Level 3: Candidates have selected events on the basis of their significance and have explained why at least some of them were important in Mandela's life. [5-6]

Question 2

Level 1: Candidates describe examples of external pressure rather than explaining how they helped to bring about the end of apartheid and minority rule.

OR

Candidates explain in a general way how external pressure helped to bring apartheid and minority rule to an end but the explanation is very general with no specific factors or consequences being explained. [1-2]

Level 2: Candidates explain the impact of one specific factor. These answers must be causal explanations, i.e. they must explain how the factor contributed to the ending of apartheid or minority rule. [3-5]

Level 3: Candidates explain the impact of more than one factor. These must be different types of factors e.g. economic and sporting. These answers must be causal explanations, i.e. they explain how the factors contributed to the ending of apartheid or minority rule. [6-7]

Question 3

Level 1: Candidates make supported assertions. These answers will simply make assertions and the support will be very general. [1-2]

Level 2: Candidates describe the role of one or both men – no explanation or assessment of their importance is provided. [3-5]

Level 3: Candidates explain the importance of one of the men. [6-8]

Level 4: Candidates explain the importance of both men but fail to compare their contributions, or explain why one was more important than the other, or why they were equally important. [9-10]

Level 5: Candidates compare the importance of the two men and reach and support an informed conclusion. [11-12]

7 Regulations for Internal Assessment

7.1 SUPERVISION AND AUTHENTICATION OF INTERNALLY ASSESSED WORK

Coursework consultants have been appointed by OCR to advise on, and to approve, Centre-designed units, assignments and mark schemes. A consultant has been allocated to each Centre. It is a requirement that Centre-designed units must be submitted to the consultant for approval before the unit is taught. It is also a requirement that assignments and mark schemes must be approved by the consultant before they are given to candidates.

Submissions to the consultant must include Centre-designed units (if applicable), assignments, supporting materials (for example, sources) and marking schemes. Submissions should be made at least six weeks before it is planned to use the materials with candidates.

OCR expects teachers to supervise and guide candidates who are undertaking work which is internally assessed (for example, coursework). The degree of teacher guidance in candidates' work will vary according to the kinds of work being undertaken. It should be remembered, however, that candidates are required to reach their own judgements and conclusions.

When supervising internally assessed tasks, teachers are expected to:

- offer candidates advice about how best to approach such tasks;
- exercise continuing supervision of work in order to monitor progress and to prevent plagiarism;
- ensure that the work is completed in accordance with the specification requirements and can be assessed in accordance with the specified marking criteria and procedures.

Internally assessed work should be completed in the course of normal curriculum time and supervised and marked by the teacher. Some of the work, by its very nature, may be undertaken outside the Centre, for example, research work, testing etc. As with all internally assessed work, the teacher must be satisfied that the work submitted for assessment is the candidate's own work.

7.2 PRODUCTION AND PRESENTATION OF INTERNALLY ASSESSED WORK

Candidates must observe certain procedures in the production of internally assessed work.

- Any copied material must be suitably acknowledged.
- Quotations must be clearly marked and a reference provided wherever possible.
- Work submitted for moderation must be marked with the following information:

Centre number
Centre name candidate number candidate name
specification code and title assignment title.

- All work submitted for moderation must be kept in a flat card file (not a ring binder).

7.3 MARKING CRITERIA FOR INTERNALLY ASSESSED WORK

Written Communication

Candidates are expected to:

- present relevant information in a form that suits its purpose;
- ensure text is legible and that spelling, punctuation and grammar are accurate, so that meaning is clear.

Where appropriate they should also use a suitable structure and style of writing.

The quality of written communication covers clarity of expression, structure of arguments, presentation of ideas, grammar, punctuation and spelling. Centres should note that whilst no separate mark is to be awarded for written communication, it should act as one of the criteria used to decide the place of a response within a level in coursework mark schemes.

Centres may find the following levels of assistance when considering standards of written communication.

Threshold

Candidates spell, punctuate and use the rules of grammar with reasonable accuracy; they use a limited range of specialist terms appropriately.

Intermediate

Candidates spell, punctuate and use the rules of grammar with considerable accuracy; they use a good range of specialist terms with facility.

High

Candidates spell, punctuate and use the rules of grammar with almost faultless accuracy, deploying a range of grammatical constructions; they use a wide range of specialist terms adeptly and with precision.

Marking Criteria

Marks should be awarded according to the following criteria for each assessment objective. It should be noted that these descriptors are general and refer to a candidate's overall performance in each assessment objective, and therefore should not be used to mark individual tasks. A levels of response mark scheme should be constructed for each task set. The total mark achieved will place the candidate in one of the levels below. The candidate's work should, as a whole, demonstrate the qualities listed in that level. If it does not, the marks will need to be adjusted.

Assessment Objective 1

Band 1, mark range 1-8

Candidates can select and use some relevant information to construct narratives, descriptions and explanations which are straightforward and accurate but are likely to be relatively brief or limited in scope.

Candidates can describe some of the main events, people and changes, and give a few reasons for, and results of, the main events and changes.

Candidates can describe a few features of an event, issue or period including, at a basic level, characteristic ideas, beliefs and attitudes.

Band 2, mark range 9-18

Candidates can select, organise and deploy a wider range of relevant information to produce structured narratives, descriptions and explanations which are accurate and reasonably thorough but are nonetheless limited to the more obvious aspects of the matter under consideration.

Candidates can produce structured descriptions and explanations of events, people, changes and issues, and analyse causes and consequences.

Candidates can describe, analyse and explain key features and characteristics of situations, periods, and societies including the variety of ideas, attitudes, and beliefs held by people at the time.

Band 3, mark range 19-25

Candidates can select, organise and deploy an extensive range of relevant information to produce consistently well structured narratives, descriptions and explanations which are thorough and accurate and show appreciation of the wider context of the information.

Candidates can analyse relationships between a wide range of events, people, ideas and changes. Their explanations and analyses of causes and consequences of events and changes are well substantiated and set in their wider historical context.

Candidates can give reasons for the diversity of the features and ideas, attitudes and beliefs in the periods, societies and situations studied, and can explain the interrelationship between them.

7.4 MODERATION

All internally assessed work is marked by the teacher and internally standardised by the Centre. Marks are then submitted to OCR by a specified date, after which moderation takes place in accordance with OCR procedures. The purpose of moderation is to ensure that the standard of the award of marks for internally assessed work is the same for each Centre and that each teacher has applied the standards appropriately across the range of candidates within the Centre.

The sample of work that is presented to the Moderator for moderation must show how the marks have been awarded in relation to the marking criteria defined in Sub-section 7.3.

Where it is not clear within a project folder, by the candidate's own presentation of work, where the marks have been awarded, annotation must be carried out by the person marking the work.

A separate cover sheet containing reference to the criteria applied and their location within the project is recommended.

In order to ensure that internally assessed work has arisen from an approved course of study, Centres are required to submit, at the time of moderation, one candidate's folder of classwork on the coursework unit, as well as the sample of internally assessed work.

7.5 MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS FOR INTERNALLY ASSESSED WORK

There should be clear evidence that work has been attempted and some work produced.

If a candidate submits no work for an internally assessed component, then the candidate should be indicated as being absent from that component on the mark sheets submitted to OCR. If a candidate completes any work at all for an internally assessed component, then the work should be assessed according to the criteria and marking instructions and the appropriate mark awarded, which may be zero.

SECTION E: FURTHER INFORMATION

8 Opportunities for Teaching

8.1 ICT

In order to play a full part in modern society, candidates need to be confident and effective users of ICT. Where appropriate, candidates should be given opportunities to use ICT in order to further their study of History.

This sub-section offers guidance on opportunities for using ICT during the course. These opportunities are also indicated within the content of Sub-section 5 by a  symbol. Such opportunities may or may not contribute to the provision of evidence for IT Key Skills. Where such opportunities do contribute, they are identified by the use of the  symbol.

ICT Application/ Development	Opportunities for using ICT during the course
Find out things from a variety of sources, selecting and synthesising the information to meet their needs.	For coursework candidates access electronic archives, search for and use appropriate websites for museums, government agencies and university departments.
Use a database to search and analyse patterns and test hypotheses effectively.	Candidates use CD-Roms and websites to test hypotheses about a given topic such as the effectiveness of the League of Nations. Candidates use a database showing changing voting patterns in Germany in the late 1920s and early 1930s to establish patterns in changing support for the Nazi Party.
Develop an ability to question the accuracy, bias and plausibility of information researched.	Candidates evaluate the different interpretations to be found on the Internet about, for example, the fall of Communism in Europe.
Develop ideas using ICT tools; amend and refine work and enhance its quality and accuracy.	Candidates use an ICT processed writing frame to develop skills in extended writing and structure answers. These may be marked, or discussed in class, and then redrafted. Candidates may organise and deliver a presentation about, for example, the reasons for America's defeat in the Vietnam War to the rest of the class using Power Point.
Use a word-processing package to organise and classify.	Candidates organise and classify different types of causes of the Second World War and produce an annotated causal chain.
Exchange and share information.	E Mail projects may be organised for candidates to communicate with each other, their teacher, students or experts from other centres or other countries. Ideas and information about topics such as the Cold War, the Vietnam War, and the fall of Communism in Europe could be exchanged. Candidates use E-mail or an electronic Noticeboard to collect and pass on, for example, revision notes.

8.2 CITIZENSHIP

From September 2002, the National Curriculum for England at Key Stage 4 includes a mandatory programme of study for Citizenship. Parts of this programme of study may be delivered through an appropriate treatment of other subjects.

This sub-section offers guidance on opportunities for developing knowledge, skills and understanding of citizenship issues during the course. These opportunities are also indicated within the content of Sub-section 5 by a  symbol.

Citizenship Programme of Study	Opportunities for teaching Citizenship Issues during the course
The legal and human rights and responsibilities underpinning society and how they relate to citizens, including the operation of the criminal and civil justice systems.	These issues are addressed when studying legal and human rights and responsibilities, for example, in coursework units on Nazi Germany, Soviet Russia or South Africa, and comparing these with the rights and responsibilities of citizens in a modern democratic state.
The work of Parliament, the government and the courts in making and shaping law.	These issues are addressed when studying the making and shaping of laws, for example, in the USA in the 1920s and 1930s. They are also addressed at an international level by studying the operation of the League of Nations.
The importance of a free press and the media's role in society.	Study of the importance and role of the media in the chosen coursework unit will give rise to opportunities to discuss the importance of a free media in society.
The United Kingdom's relations in Europe.	The changing nature of the United Kingdom's relations in Europe through the twentieth century is studied as part of the core content. This contributes to an understanding of the United Kingdom's relations in Europe today.
Opportunities for individuals and voluntary groups to bring about social change.	The role of influential individuals and groups in bringing about change is studied, for example, in coursework units on South Africa, The USA or Germany.
Express, justify and defend orally and in writing a personal opinion about such issues.	Candidates can, through the use of hot seating, express, justify and defend their views about, for example, the policy of appeasement, or America's involvement in Vietnam.
Contribute to group and class discussion and formal debates.	Working in groups, candidates can prepare arguments in favour and against, for example, the terms of the Treaty of Versailles.
Use imagination to consider, express, explain and evaluate other people's experiences and opinions.	The coursework units provide many opportunities for candidates to understand the experiences and views of other people, for example, different groups in South Africa, Arabs and Israelis, and the various groups in German society in the 1930s.

8.3 SPIRITUAL, MORAL, ETHICAL, SOCIAL AND CULTURAL ISSUES

This specification enables candidates to develop their understanding of spiritual, moral, ethical, social and cultural issues in depth. Spiritual issues are addressed, for example, in the coursework unit on Germany which allows candidates to reflect on the sacrifices made by the people who opposed Hitler and on the Holocaust. There are also opportunities in the component on South Africa for candidates to study and reflect about human achievements of individuals such as Nelson Mandela. Moral and ethical issues are addressed in the core content, for example, in evaluating the fairness of the peace treaties 1919-23, as well as in the coursework units, for example, the moral and ethical issues related to apartheid in the South Africa component. Social issues are addressed, for example, in the first key question of the core content where the changes in the roles of women in Britain during the First World War are studied. Coursework units, for example, those on Russia and Germany, address a range of cultural issues by considering the role of culture in society and politics.

8.4 HEALTH, SAFETY AND ENVIRONMENTAL ISSUES

OCR has taken account of the 1988 Resolution of the Council of the European Community and the Report Environmental Responsibility: An Agenda for Further and Higher Education, 1993 in preparing this specification and associated specimen assessments.

Health, safety and environmental issues are addressed in the core content, for example, in the study of the work of the International Labour Organisation in relation to health, safety and environmental issues in the workplace, and the work of the Health Committee in fighting dangerous diseases and educating people about health and sanitation.

Environmental issues are also addressed through candidates' understanding of how past actions, choices and values impact on present and future societies, economies and environments.

Safety during fieldwork is paramount, and candidates should be involved in risk assessment as part of their preparation for coursework.

8.5 THE EUROPEAN DIMENSION

OCR has taken account of the 1988 Resolution of the Council of the European Community in preparing this specification and associated specimen assessments. European examples should be used where appropriate in the delivery of the subject content. Relevant European legislation is identified within the specification where applicable.

The European dimension is addressed in the core content where both co-operation and conflict between European states are studied. Attempts at co-operation are examined, for example, in the Key Question 'To what extent was the League of Nations a success?', while reasons for conflict between European nations are addressed in the Key Question 'Why had international peace collapsed by 1939?'.

9 Key Skills

Key Skills are central to successful employment and underpin further success in learning independently. Whilst they are certified separately, the Key Skills guidance for this qualification has been designed to support the teaching and learning of the content. Opportunities for developing the generic Key Skills of Communication, Application of Number and Information Technology are indicated through the use of a  in Sub-section 5. The wider Key Skills of Working with Others, Problem Solving and Improving own Learning and Performance may also be developed through the teaching programmes associated with the specification.

The following matrix indicates those Key Skills for which opportunities for at least some coverage of the relevant Key Skills unit exist.

	Communication	Application of Number	IT	Working with Others	Improving Own Learning and Performance	Problem Solving
Level 1	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓
Level 2	✓		✓	✓	✓

Detailed opportunities for generating Key Skills evidence through this specification are posted on the OCR website. A summary document for Key Skills coordinators showing ways in which opportunities for Key Skills arise within GCSE courses will be published during 2001.

10 Reading List

At the time of the publication of this specification Heinemann are preparing a GCSE History textbook to accompany this course. It will be endorsed by OCR for use with this specification subject to OCR's quality assurance procedure before final publication.
