INSTRUCTIONS TO CANDIDATES

Use black ink, black ball-point pen or your usual method.

Write your name, centre number and candidate number in the spaces provided on the front cover.

Answer TWO questions from Section A and ONE question from Section B.

Write your answers in the spaces provided in this booklet. If you run out of space, use the continuation page at the back of the booklet, and if this is not sufficient use supplementary sheets. Write your name at the top of each supplementary sheet, indicating clearly the number of the question you answer. Put the supplementary sheets inside this booklet.

INFORMATION FOR CANDIDATES

The number of marks is given in brackets at the end of each question or part-question.

You are reminded that assessment will take into account the quality of written communication used in your answers that involve extended writing. These are the questions in Section B.

In addition, your ability to spell, punctuate and use grammar accurately will be assessed in your answer to your chosen question in Section B.

END OF QUESTION 1

SOURCE A

At the start of the nineteenth century surgeons were seen as part-showmen, part-butchers. Many of them took pride in operating in their blood-stained coats. Speed was the most important thing for a surgeon.

[From a newspaper article]

SOURCE B

A drawing of an operation from 1868. Four men, wearing suits, are shown gathered around an unconscious patient. One man is holding a cloth over the patient's mouth and nose. A pump is keeping a spray going steadily over the area of the surgery.

SOURCE A

Back-to-back houses in the early part of the twentieth century had no rear windows and no back gardens. They had shared toilets, often with bedrooms directly above. The toilets were horrible and caused disease to spread fast.

[From a school textbook]

New council houses being built in 1946. The photograph shows a workman on a roof. Below him there is an area of ground before the curve of a new road around which semi-detached houses are being built.
