SOURCE A

Cultural Identity

Having a sense of cultural identity gives a young person a sense of belonging. A young person can express their cultural identity in many ways, for example, through language, music/dance and religion.

Although Northern Ireland is a multicultural society young people who are from other countries may face problems adjusting to life here. For example, a young person might find it hard to make new friends and to "fit in" at their new school or college. The young person may face problems with the language, and in some cases face discrimination.

Schools try to make young people from different countries feel included. Often schools have a social inclusion policy and hold events to celebrate cultural diversity. For example, pupils can learn about other cultures and social inclusion in citizenship. The school could also promote different religious festivals or different languages or traditional foods.

Wants and Needs

With all the choices available to people today it is easy to spend money on the things we want rather than the things we need. Wants are luxuries that help make our lives more enjoyable and may make our lifestyle better, such as mobile phones and holidays. A need is essential for surviving and includes shelter, food, water and clothes. Services such as electricity, heating and medical facilities can also be considered a need.

There are a wide variety of services all competing for people to spend money.

For example shops are full of special offers to encourage people to spend money.

Some retailers use pricing tactics to encourage unnecessary spending such as two for one offers or buy one get one free.

People need to be careful that they don't overspend and should keep to a weekly or monthly budget. It is very easy for people to use debit cards to take advantage of offers when buying clothes or shopping as the money comes straight out of your account.

Competition Between Businesses

Businesses need to provide better quality products and services than their competitors to attract customers.

A business must value its employees so that they are continually motivated to produce their best in the workplace. As a result of this, employees need to undergo training programmes in order to update their skills in the use of modern technology so that they will become more effective in their job. This training could lead to better job satisfaction and an increase in salary for the employee.

Updated technology in the workplace will inevitably lead to an increase of sales as businesses can then trade on the Internet. They will become better known worldwide and will be able to trade 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

On the other hand, having a worldwide market will mean that the business will face a lot of competition which may affect their sales and profit.
