Introduction

Mark Schemes are published to assist teachers and students in their preparation for examinations. Through the mark schemes teachers and students will be able to see what examiners are looking for in response to questions and exactly where the marks have been awarded. The publishing of the mark schemes may help to show that examiners are not concerned about finding out what a student does not know but rather with rewarding students for what they do know.

The Purpose of Mark Schemes

Examination papers are set and revised by teams of examiners and revisers appointed by the Council. The teams of examiners and revisers include experienced teachers who are familiar with the level and standards expected of 16- and 18-year-old students in schools and colleges. The job of the examiners is to set the questions and the mark schemes; and the job of the revisers is to review the questions and mark schemes commenting on a large range of issues about which they must be satisfied before the question papers and mark schemes are finalised.

The questions and the mark schemes are developed in association with each other so that the issues of differentiation and positive achievement can be addressed right from the start. Mark schemes therefore are regarded as a part of an integral process which begins with the setting of questions and ends with the marking of the examination.

The main purpose of the mark scheme is to provide a uniform basis for the marking process so that all the markers are following exactly the same instructions and making the same judgements in so far as this is possible. Before marking begins a standardising meeting is held where all the markers are briefed using the mark scheme and samples of the students' work in the form of scripts. Consideration is also given at this stage to any comments on the operational papers received from teachers and their organisations. During this meeting, and up to and including the end of the marking, there is provision for amendments to be made to the mark scheme. What is published represents this final form of the mark scheme.

It is important to recognise that in some cases there may well be other correct responses which are equally acceptable to those published: the mark scheme can only cover those responses which emerged in the examination. There may also be instances where certain judgements may have to be left to the experience of the examiner, for example, where there is no absolute correct response – all teachers will be familiar with making such judgements.

The Council hopes that the mark schemes will be viewed and used in a constructive way as a further support to the teaching and learning processes.

MARK SCHEMES

FOREWORD

Introduction

Mark Schemes are published to assist teachers and students in their preparation for examinations. Through the mark schemes teachers and students will be able to see what examiners are looking for in response to questions and exactly where the marks have been awarded. The publishing of the mark schemes may help to show that examiners are not concerned about finding out what a student does not know but rather with rewarding students for what they do know.

The Purpose of Mark Schemes

Examination papers are set and revised by teams of examiners and revisers appointed by the Council. The teams of examiners and revisers include experienced teachers who are familiar with the level and standards expected of 16 and 18 year old students in schools and colleges. The job of the examiners is to set the questions and the mark schemes; and the job of the revisers is to review the questions and mark schemes commenting on a large range of issues about which they must be satisfied before the question papers and mark schemes are finalised.

The questions and mark schemes are developed in association with each other so that the issues of differentiation and positive achievement can be addressed right from the start. Mark schemes therefore are regarded as a part of an integral process which begins with the setting of questions and ends with the marking of the examination.

The main purpose of the mark scheme is to provide a uniform basis for the marking process so that all markers are following exactly the same instructions and making the same judgements in so far as this is possible. Before marking begins a standardising meeting is held where all the markers are briefed using the mark scheme and samples of the students' work in the form of scripts. Consideration is also given at this stage to any comments on the operational papers received from teachers and their organisations. During this meeting, and up to and including the end of the marking, there is provision for amendments to be made to the mark scheme. What is published represents this final form of the mark scheme.

It is important to recognise that in some cases there may well be other correct responses which are equally acceptable to those published: the mark scheme can only cover those responses which emerged in the examination. There may also be instances where certain judgements may have to be left to the experience of the examiner, for example, where there is no absolute correct response - all teachers will be familiar with making such judgements.

The Council hopes that the mark schemes will be viewed and used in a constructive way as a further support to the teaching and learning processes.

Introductory Remarks

The assessment objectives (AOs) for this specification are listed below. Students must:

- Recall, select and communicate their knowledge and understanding of a range of contexts. (AO1);
- Apply skills, knowledge and understanding in a variety of contexts and in planning and carrying out investigations and tasks. (AO2)
- Analyse and evaluate information, sources, and evidence, make reasoned judgements and present conclusions. (AO3)

General Instructions for Markers

The main purpose of the mark scheme is to provide a uniform basis for the marking process so that all markers are following exactly the same instructions and making the same judgements so far as this is possible. Markers must apply the mark scheme in a consistent manner and to the standard agreed at the standardising meeting.

It is important to recognise that in some cases there may be other correct responses that are equally acceptable to those included in this mark scheme. There may be instances where certain judgements have to be left to the experience of the examiner, for example, where there is no absolute, correct answer.

Makers are advised that there is no correlation between length and quality of response. Candidates may provide a very concise answer that fully addresses the requirements of the question and is therefore worthy of full or almost full marks. Alternatively, a candidate may provide a very long answer which also addresses the requirements of the question and is equally worthy of full or almost full marks. It is important, therefore, not to be influenced by the length of the candidate's response but rather by the extent to which the requirements of the mark scheme have been met.

Some candidates may present answers in writing that is difficult to read. Markers should take time to establish what points are being expressed before deciding on a mark allocation. However, candidates should present answers which are legible and markers should not spend a disproportionate amount of time trying to decipher writing that is illegible.

Levels of Response

General descriptions of the criteria governing levels of response mark schemes are set out on the next page. When deciding about the level of a response, a "best fit" approach should be taken. It will not be necessary for a response to meet the requirements of all the criteria within any given level for that level to be awarded.

Having decided what the level is, it is then important that a mark from within the range for that level, which accurately reflects the value of the candidate's answer, is awarded.

Levels of Response Marking Grid

|                | AO1 [3]   | AO2 [3]   | AO3 [3]  |
|----------------|--|--|---|
| Level 1 | 1. Candidates demonstrate a basic knowledge and understanding. They give a basic description. There will be little organisation. | 1. Candidates are able to apply limited knowledge and understanding. They give simple explanations. There will be few vocational links.  | 1. Candidates' responses suggest simple, broadly relevant ideas. They reach straightforward conclusions. Responses may not be clearly presented. They use a limited range of specialist terms.  |
| Level 2 | 2. Candidates demonstrate a sound knowledge and understanding. They give a sound description. Answers will be organised.         | 2. Candidates apply knowledge and understanding to a range of situations. They give sound explanations, with some detail. There will be some vocational links and occasional detail. | 2. Candidates comment in depth suggesting relevant ideas for development. They reach reasoned conclusions. Responses will usually be clearly presented. They will use a good range of specialist terms where appropriate.               |
| Level 3 | 3. Candidates demonstrate a detailed understanding. They give a detailed description. Answers will be well organised.            | 3. Candidates apply relevant knowledge and understanding. They give full, detailed explanations, vocational links and the inter-relationship between factors.                        | 3. Candidates comment fully, suggesting detailed relevant ideas. They reach reasoned conclusions. Responses will consistently be clearly presented in a logical form. They will use a wide range of specialist terms where appropriate. |

The levels of response grid should be used in conjunction with the mark scheme and applied to all answers including those which may fall under the guise of any other reasonable response.

Level 3 ([5]–[6])

Comprehensive analysis

Eg They will have their own accommodation with them so their children will be familiar with their surroundings and will take less time to settle when they reach their destination.

When travelling they can pull in for a stop whenever it suits them, so they are setting their own pace which will be more suitable for their children.

They have to drive which will be very tiring for all in the car, the children will be very restless and the parents may become very irritated which may cause tempers to rise.

The journey will take them at least a day driving and crossing to France by ferry / channel tunnel and then driving again to reach their destination and if they flew it may take less time.

 More people will need to be employed to cater for the increased numbers of visitors.

Level 3 ([5]–[6])

Comprehensive analysis
 Eg. As the level of tourism increases the businesses will have an increased income enabling them to improve their facilities and employ more persons. They will also be able to pay a higher wage, so their employees will display higher standards and will also have a greater disposable income.
