Comprehension passage for items 81 to 85 :

Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow :

StudentBounty.com The average species on Earth lasts for only about four million years, so if you wish to be around for billions of years, you must be as fickle as the atoms that made you. You must be prepared to change everything about yourself - shape, size, colour, species affiliation, everything - and to do so repeatedly. That's much easier said than done, because the process of change is random. To get from 'protoplasmal primordial atomic globule' (as Gilbert and Sullivan put it) to sentient upright modern human has required you to mutate new traits over and over in a precisely timely manner for an exceedingly long while. So at various periods over the last 3.8 billion years you have abhorred oxygen and then doted on it, grown fins and limbs and jaunty sails, laid eggs, flicked the air with a forked tongue, been sleek, been furry, lived underground, lived in trees, been as big as a deer and as small as a mouse, and a million things more. The tiniest deviation from any of these evolutionary imperatives and you might now be licking algae from cave walls or lolling walrus - like on some stony shore or disgorging air through a blowhole in the top of your head before diving sixty feet for a mouthful of delicious sandworms.

Not only have you been lucky enough to be attached since time immemorial to a favoured evolutionary line, but you have also been extremely - make that miraculously - fortunate in your personal ancestry. Consider the fact that for 3.8 billion years, a period of time older than the Earth's mountains and rivers and oceans, every one of your forebears on both sides has been attractive enough to find a mate, healthy enough to reproduce, and sufficiently blessed by fate and circumstances to live long enough to do so. Not one of your pertinent ancestors was squashed, devoured, drowned, starved, stuck fast, untimely wounded or otherwise deflected from its life's quest of delivering a tiny charge of genetic material to the right partner at the right moment to perpetuate the only possible sequence of hereditary combinations that could result - eventually, astoundingly, and all too briefly - in you.

Comprehension Passage for items 86 to 90 :

Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below it :

Desertification, the creation of desert-like conditions where none had existed before, is the result of the vagaries of weather and climate or the mismanagement of the land or, in most cases, some combination of both. Such ecological deterioration in the Sahel has been linked in several ways to the increased size of livestock herds. During the fifteen years preceding 1968, a period of extremely favourable rainfall, the pastoralists moved into the marginal regions in the north with relatively large herds. However, with the onset of a series of dry years beginning at the end of the rainy season in 1967, the pastoral population found themselves overtaxing very marginal rangelands, with the result that the nomads viewed themselves as victims of a natural disaster. The mistaken idea that drought is an unexpected event has often been used to excuse the fact the long-range planning has failed to take rainfall variability into account. People blame the climate for agricultural failures in semi-arid regions and make it a scapegoat for faulty population and agricultural policies.

- 86. According to passage desertification is LEAST likely to take place because of ______.
 - faulty agricultural policies (2)(1)grazing in marginal regions
 - random climatic variations (4) population overload

It can be inferred that the author regards the pastoralists mentioned in the passage as 87.

- (1)victims of natural disaster.
- (2) at least partly to blame for their situation after 1967.
- (3) unaware of the possibility of drought.
- (4) incorrectly blaming the environment instead of their own faulty agricultural policies.

Find out the correct word from the passage to the following expression : 88. People who depend solely or mostly on cattle for a living. (1)agriculturalists (2) pastoralists scapegoats (3)(4) nomads 89. The word 'overtaxing' in the context means _ (1)overgrazing (2) paying excess tax (3)little important (4) less fertile

Comprehension Passage for items 91 to 95 :

Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow :

When I was in college, we talked about India as though it were an airplane and we wondered when it would take off into self-generating growth. No one asked "if" it would take off - the only question was "when". During the takeoff, economists told us, the nation's investment rate would climb to 10 to 12 percent. Well, our investment rate in India has been well over 20 percent for two decades, and yet we have not transformed our society. Why ? There were at least six things wrong with India's mantra. One, it adopted an inward-looking, import substituting path, rather than an outward-looking, export-promoting route, thus denying itself a share in world trade and the prosperity that trade brought in the postwar era. Two, it set up a massive, inefficient, and monopolistic public sector to which it denied autonomy of working; hence our investments were not productive and we had poor capital-output ratio. Three, it overregulated private enterprise with the worst controls in the world, and this diminished competition in the market; besides, our merchant-businessmen were not "tinkerers" and they were slow to innovate. Four, it discouraged foreign capital and denied itself the benefits of technology and world-class competition. Five, it pampered organized labour to the point where we have extremely low productivity. Six, and perhaps most important, it ignored the education of half its children, especially of girls.

In part, this is the story of the betrayal of the last two generations by India's rulers. In stubbornly persisting with the wrong model of development, they suppressed growth and jobs and denied their people an opportunity to rise above poverty. It is ironic that men and women of goodwill created this order and were widely admired. After all, they did succeed in institutionalizing democracy. The second irony is that in the name of the poor they refused to change course. The worst indictment of Indian socialism is that in the end it did very little for the poor. Our failure came less from ideology and more from poor management.

- 91. Competition in the market was not strong because :
 - (a) private enterprise was controlled;
 - our entrepreneurs were not innovative; (b)
 - (c) foreign capital was discouraged;
 - (d) foreign benefits of technology were denied
 - (1)All four (2)Only (a) and (b)
 - (4) Only (a), (c) and (d)(3)Only (a), (b) and (c)

93. The writer believes our investments were not productive because :

(a) our public sector was huge and inefficient;

(b) our public sector was monopolistic;

(c) our public sector had no autonomy of working;

(d) we had poor capital-output ratio;

- (1) Only (a) and (b) (2) Only (a) and (c)
- (3) Only (a), (b) and (c) (4) All four

94. The ironies that the writer points at are that India's rulers :

- (a) stubbornly persisted with the wrong model of development;
- (b) were people of goodwill and widely admired;
- (c) succeeded in institutionalizing democracy;
- (d) let the poor become poorer by refusing to change course
- (1) Only (a) and (b) (2) Only (a) and (c)
- (3) Only (b) and (d) (4) All four

Comprehension Passage for items 96 to 100 :

StudentBounty.com Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below it :

The magnetic treatment of various human diseases, said to have been mentioned in the Atharva Veda, but forgotten for centuries till it was recently revived by homeopaths in the United States, the Soviet Union and Japan, has sparked off a controversy in New Delhi.

Homeopath Dr. HL Bansal, who runs a free magnetotherapy clinic, says magnets act on the iron in the blood, thus benefiting human metabolism. The pervading of the magnetic field into blood circulation, the nerves and the muscles cures diseases ranging from appendicitis and asthma to sprain and sleeplessness.

But a Delhi University zoologist, Dr. KS Balasubramanium, cautions that magnetic treatment harms brain cells, affects the functioning of the vital pituitary gland and causes sterility. His research on the effect of an electromagnetic field on the brains of rats and birds revealed that a magnetic field of 10 Gauss caused sperm cells in the testes to decay within two weeks of exposure. The end result was that no sperm cells were formed.

- 96. Which of the following has/have been the outcome of the research carried out to know the effects of an electromagnetic field on the brains of rats and birds ?
 - The electromagnetic field badly affects the sperm cells. (1)
 - (2)The magnetic field of less than 10 Gauss has no effect on the reproductive tissues.
 - Though numerous sperm cells were found only a few of them could survive. (3)
 - (4) All the above

97. What according to Dr. Bansal, is the effect of magnets on human metabolism ?

- Magnets enrich iron contents in human blood. (1)
- By inducing magnetic field diseases like heart blockage, haemorrhage and anaemia (2)can be cured.
- Magnets act on the iron in the blood and benefit human metabolism. (3)
- (4) All the above
