Section F – Comprehension MCQ (5 x 1) marks

Read the given passage below and answer questions 26 to 30.

Last Thursday, an old boy came to our school to talk about the evils of smoking. He said he would be brief and we saw him take his wrist-watch off and lay it on the table. I could not remember what he said about smoking because Slater and I had other things to think about. He finished when the bell rang loudly for play-time and the headmaster told us to go out. Slater happened to stumble ... 5

In the playground, Slater showed me the watch. He put it on his wrist, and it looked lovely. I was wishing that I had been the one to slip by the table because it was a beautiful watch, gold by the look of it. The headmaster came outside then, and the old boy was with him. They walked about, looking around and talking all the time. After a while, the bell rang, and we got into our lines, ready to go in. 10

The headmaster said, "I've got a little job for you boys. This gentleman, our lecturer, has just lost his watch in the playground. It's happened before, he says, it just slips off his wrist. So look around for it, will you? See if you're clever enough to find it. I've no doubt the boy who does so will get a useful reward."

Well, of course, Slater was not going to miss a chance like that. He was just about the luckiest devil in the school – rewards just dropped into his hands. We all walked about the playground, looking for the watch. And I was not a bit surprised when Slater bent down as if he was picking something up. Then he hurried past me towards the old ^{boy} ~~man~~. 15

"Where are you going?" I called out, though I knew very well where he was going. 20

"Where do you think?" he called back.

The next minute there was Slater, all smiles, handing over the watch to the old boy and hanging about for the reward.

But the lecturer did not seem at all pleased. In fact he looked quite ready to put a knife into Slater's heart – until the headmaster burst out laughing. Then they both laughed. Slater told me afterwards that the old boy had not even said 'Thank you' for the watch. 25

The thing that puzzled me most of all was that Slater did not get any reward. When he reminded the headmaster about it, the headmaster said, "Ah, yes, we must not forget that. I said a 'useful reward', didn't I?" 30

He gave Slater a big sheet of paper and told him to write a composition on the evils of smoking. Slater said he had not got a clue what to write.

For each question from 26 to 30, four options are given. One of them is the correct answer. Choose the correct answer and shade the corresponding ovals on the Optical Answer Sheet (OAS) provided.

26. "Slater happened to stumble..." (line 5) because _____.

- 1) the loud bell frightened him
- 2) he had planned to do something naughty
- 3) he was rushing to the playground
- 4) he was afraid of the headmaster ()

27. When the writer saw his friend with the watch, he _____.

- 1) was excited
- 2) felt that he was in luck
- 3) felt happy for him
- 4) was envious of him ()

28. Slater decided to return the watch because he _____.

- 1) realised that it belonged to the old boy.
- 2) wanted to get the reward
- 3) was afraid of being punished
- 4) was afraid his friend would tell on him ()

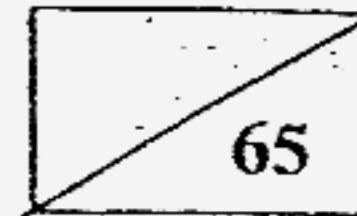

29. The old boy did not thank Slater because he was _____.

- 1) too anxious looking for the watch
- 2) very angry with him
- 3) too surprised to get his watch back
- 4) busy sharing a joke with the headmaster ()

30. Which statement is true?

- 1) The headmaster was pleased that Slater returned the watch.
- 2) Slater's reward came late.
- 3) The old boy lost his watch in the playground.
- 4) The watch was missing from the table. ()

Section K – Comprehension (10 x 2) marks

Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow.

The New Year was coming and Ah Bah looked forward to it with excitement that he could hardly conceal. Ah Bah's thin fingers closed round the red packets of money given by the New Year visitors with such energy that his mother would scold him and shake her head, as she remarked apologetically to the visitors, "My Ah Bah, he feels no shame whatever!"

His forefinger and thumb feeling expertly through the red paper, Ah Bah could tell immediately how much was in the red packet; his heart would sink a little if the fingers felt the hard edges of coins, for that would be forty cents or eighty cents at most. But if nothing was felt, then joy of joys! Here was at least a dollar inside.

This year Ah Bah had eight dollar notes. He could hardly believe it when he took 10 stock of his wealth on the last day of the festive season. Eight new notes, crisp, still smelling new and showing no creases except where they had been folded to go into the red packets. Eight dollars and a small pile of coins beside.

And then it was all anxiety and fear, for he realised that his father knew about his ang pow money; indeed his father had referred to it once or twice, and Ah Bah was 15 certain, his father would be searching the bedding, cupboard and other places in the house for it.

Ah Bah's heart beat with the violence of angry defiance at the thought. The total amount in his cigarette tin was now seventeen dollars and twenty-five cents, and Ah Bah was determined to protect his money at all cost. Nobody was going to take his 20 money from him. Frantically, Ah Bah went to the cupboard, took out the bundle of money from the cigarette tin and stuffed it into his trouser pocket. It made a conspicuous bulge. Ah Bah did not know what to do, and his little mind worked feverishly to find a way out of this difficult situation.

He was wandering about in the village the next day as usual, and when he 25 returned home, he was crying bitterly. His pocket was empty. When his mother came to him and asked him what the matter was, he bawled. He told her, between sobs, that a rough-looking man had pushed him to the ground and taken away his money. His father who was in the bedroom rushed out, and made Ah Bah tell again what had happened. When Ah Bah had finished, sniffing miserably, his father hit him on the 30 head, snarling, "You idiot! Why were you so anxious to show off your ang pow money? Now you've lost it all!" And when he was told that the sum was seventeen dollars and twenty-five cents, his vexation was extreme, so that he would not be contented till he had hit the boy again.

Ah Bah's mother cleaned the bruise on the side of his face where he had been pushed to the ground, and led him away from his father. 35

"You are a silly boy," she scolded. "Why did you carry so much money around with you? Someone was sure to rob you!" And feeling sorry for him, she felt about in her blouse pocket and found she could spare fifty cents, so she gave it to him saying, "Next time, don't be so silly, son." 40

He took the coin from her and he was deeply moved. And then, upon impulse, he took her by the hand and led her outside their house to the old hen-house, near the well, under the trees and he whispered to her, his heart almost bursting with excitement of a secret successfully kept, "It's there! In the cigarette tin, behind that piece of wood!" To prove it, he squeezed into the hen-house and soon emerged, 45 reeking of hen-house odours, triumphantly clutching the tin. He took off the lid and showed her the money inside.

For each question from 71 to 80, write your answer in the space provided.
All answers must be in COMPLETE SENTENCES.

71. Why was Ah Bah excited about the New Year?

72. Why did Ah Bah's mother apologise when he felt the red packets with his fingers? (lines 4 & 5)

73. What was he trying to do when he "felt through the red paper"?

74. Which sentence tells you that Ah Bah was pleasantly surprised by the unusually large amount of red packet money collected?

75. What does the word "they" in line 12 refer to?

76. What did "the thought" in line 18 refer to?

77. Why did Ah Bah's trouser pocket bulge (line 24)?

78. How did Ah Bah's mother make up for it when she thought Ah Bah had been robbed?

79. What was the "secret" (line 44)?

80. Why did Ah Bah feel "triumphant" (line 46)?
