Read the passage below and answer questions 31 to 35.

There was a strong breeze, which is unusual during a winter night in Gujarat. The sugarcane swayed wildly under a moonless sky. I pulled my jacket around me and adjusted my binoculars.

"You won't need them. It will come right down there, next to the cow," village leader Hitesh Patel whispered in my ears.

I felt like asking him if it was safe on the roof where we were perched, but then Vitthal Vasava signalled from the cowshed below.

"It seems to be coming from the riverside," he said. "You will see it any moment. Stay still and don't make any noise or you'll invite trouble," Hitesh reminded me.

Another couple of minutes passed, and then a leopard leaped out from behind the shed and made its way towards a cow that was chained to a tree nearby. As the leopard closed to within ten metres, it seemed there would be no escape for the cow. However, what I saw was something else – totally baffling.

As if enacting a character from Rudyard Kipling's Jungle Book, the cat ducked under the cow's neck, stretched out lazily and began to purr. At first, the cow ignored its companion but eventually gave in to the feline's playful nudges and started licking its fur as if it was one of its calves. It started pushing the cow's belly and after a while, crept under her neck and lay there as if resting. Then, it stood up and slowly walked back to the riverside.

What could have caused this extraordinary behaviour? It turned out that, about three years ago, a female leopard had given birth to two cubs in a sugarcane field. The villagers had spotted the family and had brought it to the notice of the forest officials. A few months later, a female leopard was captured in the area and taken to the zoo. There was no report of the cubs.

The people believed the leopard that has been frequenting the village every night and playing with the cow might be one of the two cubs.

"It's possible that this leopard cub would have seen the cow, and became imprinted on it," Hitesh Patel suggested.

For each question from 31 to 35, four options are given. One of them is the correct answer. Make your choice (1, 2, 3 or 4). Shade the correct oval (1, 2, 3 or 4) on the Optical Answer Sheet. (5 marks)

31. What were the men doing on the roof?
- (1) They were enjoying the winter night in Gujarat.
 - (2) They wanted to have a good view of Vitthal Vasava.
 - (3) They wanted to keep a safe distance from the leopard.
 - (4) They wanted to look at the leopard from a safe distance.
32. What kind of "trouble" (line 9) was Hitesh referring to?
- (1) The men falling from the roof.
 - (2) The leopard attacking the cow.
 - (3) The men being attacked by the leopard.
 - (4) The leopard ducking under the cow's neck.
33. Why was the writer puzzled?
- (1) The leopard purred like a cat.
 - (2) The leopard did not kill the cow.
 - (3) The cow licked the leopard's fur.
 - (4) The leopard pushed the cow's belly.
34. What was the cow's reaction to the leopard's "playful nudges" in line 16?
- (1) The cow was loving.
 - (2) The cow was pleased.
 - (3) The cow was irritated.
 - (4) The cow was terrified.
35. What do you think caused the leopard to behave in such an "extraordinary behaviour" (line 20)?
- (1) The leopard had seen the cow before.
 - (2) The leopard enjoyed playing with the cow.
 - (3) The leopard treated the cow like its own kind.
 - (4) The leopard had been frequenting the village every night.

Read the passage through carefully and answer the questions that follow. (20 marks)

The first time I saw rafters navigate whitewater was last summer on the Colorado River. My father, brother and I were hiking down from the North Rim, of the Grand Canyon, just above a set of huge rapids. We stopped on the trail and stood to watch as four oar boats wound their way through large rocks and massive swells. It was sweltering that day, and the water, though frightening, looked inviting and cool. Ever since, I have yearned to be a part of the danger and excitement of rafting. 5

That day did arrive, one Saturday afternoon. As soon as I stepped out of the car, the sound of the river gushing forcefully over the rocks filled my ears. Sure I was excited, but I grew nervous waiting for my turn to "ride". To help pass the time, I watched another group of rafters wind their way down the river, hoping to get an idea of what was in store for me. 10

As the rafts were pulled and tossed, one of the passengers in the largest boat nearly lost his balance and fell overboard. At that point, I began to grasp some of the dangers of rafting the "big waters". I began wondering if a change of mind was not in order.

However, by the time I was able to do so, someone told me it was my turn. I knew that if I did not go then, I might never get another chance. "I have to do this," I thought. I took a good look at the course the raft would take. I received last minute instructions to "hang on for dear life" and we were off. 15

At the outset, the water was calm and the ride smooth. But soon, the river grew more turbulent, pulling the raft from side to side. As the swells grew larger and the river seemed to pick up speed, the water around us swirled with greater force. I was confounded by the size and strength of the waves as our raft was pulled down, pushed up and propelled through rocks. From my position, I could see every obstacle in our path, which eased my mind a little. The front of the raft, as I quickly learned, has its disadvantages too. That was where you really get soaked. 20

As we continued to move swiftly downstream, I noticed that a few yards ahead of us, the river seemed to disappear. The man behind me started screaming, "Five-foot drop ahead!" Indeed, it was. The raft began its descent over the rocks and I held fast to the rope, clenching my hands as hard as I could. Finally we were tossed from the angry waves. Only then did I know I was going to survive this ordeal. 25

When we reached the end of the course, I was relieved to find my feet on solid ground again. I took a deep breath and reflected how the ride had been. "Would I do it again?" I wondered. "You bet!" 30

ALL ANSWERS MUST BE IN COMPLETE SENTENCES.
