UNIVERSITY OF LONDON MPHIL EXAMINATIONS for internal students

Pre-Socratic Philosophy

10:00 - 13:00, Monday 13th May, 2002

Candidates should answer THREE of the following questions. Please avoid overlap in your answers.

- 1. How far did the Milesians succeed in breaking away from early mythology?
- 2. Aristotle says that Xenophanes was 'the first to postulate a unity.' How does Xenophanes' monism differ from that of the early materialists?
- 3. 'Things taken together are wholes and not wholes, something which is being brought together and brought apart, which is in tune and out of tune; out of all things there comes a unity, and out of a unity all things' (Heraclitus Fr. 10). Discuss.
- 4. If Parmenides' Way of Truth is true, why did he write the Way of Seeming?
- 5. 'For if it were infinite it would be one; for if it were two, the two could not be infinite but would be limited by one another' (Melissus fr. 6). Does Melissus improve on Parmenides' account of what is?
- 6. How should Zeno's paradox of the arrow be reconstructed? Can it be solved?

PLEASE TURN OVER

- 7. 'In everything a portion of everything.' What did Anaxagoras mean by this? Is it defensible?
- 8. How far does Empedocles offer an account of natural selection?
- By convention sweet, by convention bitter, by convention hot, by convention cold, by convention colour: but in reality atoms and void' (Democritus Fr. 9). Discuss.
- 10. 'Man is the measure of all things; of the things that are that they are, of the things that are not, that they are not.' What did Protagoras mean? Is his theory reasonable?
