New Zealand is an ethnically and culturally diverse society and as time continues, we become more diverse as a country.

In 1991 83% of the total pop was European. This has decreased to 80% in 2001. and counts of Asian ethnicity have more than doubled between these times. This shows we are getting more immigrants and now the number of multilingual people has increased by 20% since 2001.

new zealand is becoming more diverse not only because of the people and languages alone but the cultural ^{experiences} aspects they bring to new zealand also. For example New Zealanders are able to experience the "Diwali" festival. This is a festival of lights the indian community celebrates and is perhaps the most important and ancient of the indian festivals.

Another cultural experience is the chinese lantern festival held in auckland. This is to celebrate chinese new year with chinese food, dancers, lanterns, martial arts displays and experience the chinese culture from a chinese person or (immigrant) cultural perspective they feel like they can share their culture with us as we have done for them to help celebrate diversity this is a positive perspective.

The reasons why new zealand is ~~the~~ an ethnically and culturally diverse society is because we are increasingly becoming aware of other peoples cultures and learning about them as we accept. For example NZ herald stated "Diversity and difference are an invitation to explore and understand. This has become easy to understand in our society as a large 19.5% of NZ residents were born overseas. That's nearly one in 5. which shows a great amount of people to experience culture from.

The positive effects are that diversity is good for a broader perspective on new ideas. And NZ'rs get think its good to learn about other cultures because it stops racism and people become tolerant of other peoples cultures. This is very significant as the amount of cultures in NZ is increasing and we are now considered a multicultural nation. to learn these skills is relevant and beneficial for a society to run well. The negative effects are that cultural diversity (shown by study resource e) is not right because the lack of integration in to NZ society means they don't mix. Another negative is that people think there are too many Foreigners and too many different cultures. Also some people do not accept new cultures eg. In 2004 there were attacks on Jewish graves a negative for society however a gathering was organised to support the incident in support for not only the graves but also in support for a diverse and multi-ethnic society. Ethnic Affairs minister Chris Carter said "we live in a society that does not tolerate discrimination of any kind" he said this because he was speaking out from a conservative worldview where they believe community action is better than individual rights alone. This is significant because it shows there are few who not cooperate but we can may // // still celebrate our ^{ethnically} diverse country //
